FROM WASHINGTON.

No Challenge yet—The Senate Appropriation Bills—Mr. Banks Declines.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 17.

The challenge has not yet passed from Col. LAMB to Senator DOUGLAS. It is understood that it awaits an answer to LAMB's demand for a retraction of DOUGLAS' offensive language.

The House, to-day, promptly laid upon the table the annual appropriation bills originated by the Senate.

Speaker BANKS positively declines being considered a candidate for the Republican nomination for President or Vice-President. Moses H. GRINNELL is positively nominated for the latter. S.

Mr. Dallas on our Difficulties with Great Britain—Visit of the President to Annapolis.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April, 17.

Mr. DALLAS, in a letter just received, says that the subject of the differences between England and the United States will be fully discussed in Parliament. He is led to believe that the discussion will not be devoid of acrimony towards this country, but is prepared to bear it like a philosopher. He mentions, with particularity, numerous acts of marked courtesy extended him, including those of the members of the British Cabinet, and regards these manifestations as expressive of a peaceable disposition toward this country.

The President contemplates leaving Washington to-morrow afternoon, in company with the Secretary of the Navy, for Annapolis, to see the steamer Merrimac, where he will be joined, on Saturday, by many members of Congress.

Letter from Joel Palmer, Superintendent of Indian Affairs in Oregon.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 17.

Among the official documents received from Oregon, in a letter from JOEL PALMER, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, who, confirming the statements of Gov. CURRY, says, "the present difficulty in Southern Oregon is wholly attributable to the acts of the whites," adding:

"I cannot but feel it is our duty to adopt such measures as will tend to secure the lives of these Indians, and maintain the guarantee secured by treaty stipulations. The future will prove that this war has been forced upon these Indians against their will, and that, too, by a set of reckless vagabonds for pecuniary and political objects, sanctioned by a numerous population who regard the Treasury of the United States as a legitimate object of plunder. The Indians in that District have been driven to desperation by acts of cruelty against their people. Treaties have been violated and acts of barbarity committed by those claiming to be citizens, that would disgrace the most barbarous nations of earth. If none but those who perpetrated such acts were to be affected by this war, we might look upon it with indifference; but unhappily this is not the case."

The Indian Treaties Ratified by the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 17.

The two treaties for the benefit of Indian tribes in Michigan, recently ratified by the Senate, make provision for their occupation of lands in that State in severalty instead of in common, and divert the annuities to their moral and industrial improvement. The treaty with certain Indian tribes in New-Mexico—likewise recently ratified—proposes to concentrate them apart from the injurious influences of the Whites, and encourage them in the arts of peace and civilization.

Col. Schlesinger's Retreat—Dispatches from Minister Wheeler to the Government.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 17.

It is said that dispatches from Col. WHEELER, to the Government, mention that Col. SCHLESINGER's retreat was not a defeat by the Costa Ricans, but a stroke of successful policy, superinduced by the largely overwhelming force of the enemy.

A Dull Day at the Capital—The Adjournment—Kansas—Army News.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 15, 1856.

The capital has presented scarcely anything of general interest to-day. The Senate was occupied entirely with a local matter, and the House, after receiving resolutions and a few reports from Committees, resumed the consideration of the deficiency appropriation bill, in Committee of the Whole, and non-concurred in a Senate amendment appropriating $300,000 for the continuation of the water works in this District. There seems to be a growing disposition in Congress to discontinue this immense public improvement, which is to develop and enhance the wealth of real-estate holders in Washington and Georgetown, entirely at the expense of the United States. It must be admitted that it is not just to tax the Union for any such purpose—and from present indications, such a course will be persisted in no longer. Private enterprise will undoubtedly take up and complete the work, and supply an abundance of pure water to the public buildings and to private citizens at moderate rates.

ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS.

I understand that at the first available opportunity it is designed to renew Mr. COX's proposition for an adjournment of Congress upon the 14th of July next. It is to be hoped the opponents of the Administration will not be caught napping. It certainly would be very agreeable if Congress could adjourn by the day named, but is it not better for the House, while pushing up its work as rapidly as possible, to retain its power to sit longer, if found necessary. It is evidently the game of the Administration party to get the Appropriation bills out of the way, and then force an adjournment, so as to cut off any general legislation, and especially to prevent any discussion of the Kansas question after the return and report of HOWARD's Committee of Investigation. A number of our friends evidently did not discover this dodge yesterday, and so voted with Mr. COX. It is to be hoped they will take care not to be unwittingly used by COX & Co., to aid, by these means, in crushing out the anticipated and important Kansas discussion.

KANSAS.

Mr. WAKEMAN, of New-York, has been endeavoring, for a week past, to get the floor for the purpose of introducing a bill for the immediate admission of Kansas as a State. He has, also, in hand a bill to regulate the fees of United States Marshals, and Proctors, and Advocates, in the United States Courts, so as to increase them about one-quarter. It is his purpose to press this measure upon the House at as early an opportunity as he can obtain.

ARMY NEWS.

A private letter from San Antonio, Texas, contains the following items of army news:

"Colonel R. E. LEE, of the 2d Cavalry, has arrived at Fort Mason, and gone to duty with his regiment. Lieutenant RADEMESKY, of the same regiment, has also joined his Company. Colonel LEE was one of our most distinguished officers during the late war with Mexico, and the whole army will hail his appointment to the vacant Brigadiership with delight.

The Department of Texas has no military commander. Gen. SMITH has left for the North, but has not, I believe, turned over his command to any other officer. We hear of no further Indian depredations in this quarter. The troops have made it so hot for them of late that they will be careful of coming down in small parties.

The Comanches in the new reservations on the Clear Fork of the Brazos River are getting along quietly, and much good is anticipated from their establishment there. Four companies of the 2d Cavalry, under the command of Col. MARCY, are stationed near or on the Reservation, and the State of Texas has extended the United States laws over the country around the Reservation. This keeps off the villainous whisky-sellers who infest the vicinity of all military posts. Capt. RAYNOR, the Sub-Indian Agent, has his residence on the Reservation." S.

XXXIVth CONGRESS—First Session.

SENATE.... WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 17.

THE COOLY TRADE.

Mr. SUMNER made a motion that the Committee on Commerce be directed to inquire into the character of the commerce known as the Cooly trade, by which large numbers of the Chinese are transported from their native country in American ships on alleged contracts for service in distant places; also, to ascertain if the same is not conducted in violation of an existing treaty with China, and consider if any legislation is expedient with a view to the prohibition of this commerce, or to prevent abuses incident thereto on board of American ships, or to extend to it the provisions and penalties of the recent Act of Congress regulating the transportation of passengers in American vessels.

BOUNTY LAND.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of the Bounty Land bill, but without disposing of it adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 17.

APPROPRIATIONS AND EXPENDITURES.

On motion of Mr. PRINGLE, the President was requested to have prepared statements showing the appropriations made during each session of the last three Congresses, particularly distinguishing those made on the recommendation of the President, Heads of Departments and Chiefs of Bureaus, likewise what expenditures were made during the same period, and whether defalcations have occurred, and if so, to what amount.

THE SENATE'S FORTIFICATION BILL TABLED.

The Senate's Fortification bill was then tabled by a large majority, on the ground that it improperly originated in that body.

DEFICIENCIES.

The consideration of the Deficiency bill was resumed and debated till the adjournment.

THE GLOBE INSURANCE COMPANY—THE LIQUOR LAW.

BOSTON, Thursday, April 17.

In the Senate to-day, a bill was reported incorporating WM. APPLETON, Esq., and others, as the Globe Insurance Company, with a capital of one million dollars.

A minority report was presented from the Committee on the Liquor Law, comprising twelve sections. The second section empowers the city and town authorities to license persons of good moral character to sell pure liquors and to revoke their licenses at pleasure.

THE WAKEMANITES.

Trial and Acquittal of the Persons Charged with the Murder of Justus W. Matthews.

The trial of RHODA WAKEMAN, SAMUEL SLY and THANKFUL S. HENRY, for the murder of Justus MATHEWS, was commenced in the Superior Court at New-Haven on Wednesday. The "Prophetess" appears as sincere as ever, and her disciples, SLY and the woman HENRY, are removed by their situation. The prisoners are defended by Ex-Governor DUTTON and JOSEPH SHELDON, Jr. The prosecution is conducted by District-Attorney FOSTER and JOHN D. CANDEE. Judges HITCHCOCK and WALDO preside.

The defendants pleaded not guilty. Counsel for defence did not deny the murder, but set up the plea that the act was done while defendants labored under an insane delusion. SLY is indicted as the principal, and the two women as accessories. The District-Attorney opened the case by exhibiting a plan of the house in which the murder was committed.

The witnesses called on Wednesday were ALBERON SANFORD, POLLY A. SANFORD, ISRAEL WOODRUFF, Dr. DAVID L. DOGGETT and PHEBE A. JEWETT. The evidence develops no new facts beyond those which have already been published in the TIMES.

The Court adjourned to Thursday.

BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW-HAVEN, Thursday, April 17.

The Jury in the trial of SAMUEL SLY, Widow WAKEMAN, and THANKFUL HENRY, for the murder of JUSTUS W. MATHEWS, this afternoon returned a verdict of not guilty, on the sole ground of insanity. The parties were all tried on one indictment. The result was generally anticipated.

REORGANIZATION OF THE WHIG PARTY IN KENTUCKY—CALL FOR ANOTHER NATIONAL CONVENTION.

The Old-Line Whigs of Kentucky assembled in mass meeting at Lexington on the 12th inst. Hon. RICHARD HAWES, of Bourbon, presided. In his opening speech he declared that Kentucky Whigs utterly "Repudiate all connection with the Abolition and Free-Soil parties of the Free States, because of their agitation of the question of Slavery, their invasion of the domestic rights and institutions of the Slave States; and their usurped claims to the settlement and occupation of the Territories of the United States, to the exclusion of the equal participation of the people of the Slave States."

This was the tenor of the speeches generally. A platform was adopted, embodying a declaration of inflexible adherence to ancient Whig principles, and an address to the Whigs of Kentucky and of the Union, was adopted.

The Convention also adopted a resolution recommending to Whigs of the United States that they assemble in National Convention at Louisville on the 4th of July next, to consider the propriety of nominating candidates for President and Vice-President.

GOV. SEWARD IN WISCONSIN.

The Beloit Journal and the Madison Journal (Wisconsin) have taken strong ground in favor of the nomination of WILLIAM H. SEWARD as the Republican candidate for President. The Madison Journal expresses the opinion that "no Anti-Slavery man yet spoken of for the Presidency will carry Wisconsin by as large a majority as WILLIAM H. SEWARD."

Senator Douglas Sixteen Years Ago.

In the fourth volume of the "Law Reporter" (Boston, 1840) we find the following account of a person who has recently been prominent before the American people. It is contained in a letter from a Boston lawyer who had emigrated to Illinois. After speaking of a change in the Judiciary, made for party purposes, he says:

"The Judge of our Circuit is S. A. DOUGLAS, a youth of 28, who was the Democratic candidate for Congress in 1836, in opposition to STUART, the late member from this County. He is a Vermonter, a man of considerable talent, and, in the way of dispatching business, is a perfect "steam-engine in breeches." This dispatch is the only benefit our Circuit will derive from the change. He is the most democratic Judge I ever knew. While a case is going on he leaves the bench and goes among the people and among the members of the Bar, takes a cigar and has a social smoke with them, or often sitting in their laps, being in person say five feet nothing or thereabouts, and probably weighing one hundred pounds. I have often thought we should cut a queer figure if one of your Suffolk bar should accidentally drop in."

MURDERESS OF A FAMILY.—MRS. HUSBAND, who was indicted with her husband, JOHN HUSBAND, for the murder of the French family in Wabash county, Indiana, took a change of venue to Grant county, and her trial came off last week and resulted in a conviction, verdict and sentence to the penitentiary for life. The testimony was the same in all substantial parts as that on which her husband was tried, convicted and hung in Wabash county.

ADVANCE IN CONSOLS.

Rate of Discount Reduced by the Bank of France.

The U. S. mail steamer Baltic, from Liverpool, 8½ A. M. of Wednesday, April 9, arrived at her dock at about 12 o'clock yesterday.

The Africa arrived at Liverpool at 4 P. M. of Monday, March 31. When off Holyhead, the Africa made signal to the shore, "No tidings of the Pacific," an announcement which was immediately telegraphed to Liverpool and London, and served to extinguish the hopes of the most sanguine in regard to the safety of the missing ship.

The Baltic brings the news that PEACE WAS SIGNED AT PARIS ON SUNDAY, THE 30TH OF MARCH. The event was announced in Paris and London by salvos of artillery. Paris was illuminated, and in England the church bells were pealed.

Three or four weeks must elapse ere ratifications of the treaty can be exchanged. Details of adjustment are referred to a Commission. The great event of peace has swallowed up all minor subjects of news.

A telegraphic dispatch from Madrid of the 29th inst. announces that the financial project of M. MARON, CEBAS was adopted on the 26th by the Cortes, by a majority of 184 to 27. The solution of this question occurs very favorably for the Government; it prevents or postpones a conflict between the constituent Cortes, the results of which might have been disastrous to all parties.

The steamer Bombay arrived at Trieste March 29, at 8¾ A. M., in 180 hours from Alexandria, which port she left on the 26d of March. The Indian and China mails were to leave Alexandria on the 24th of March, with advices from Calcutta of the 22d of February, Bombay the 6th of March, Hong Kong the 28th of February, Shanghae the 7th of February, and Canton the 12th of February. The annexation of Oude had been completed without disturbance. Lord GANNING reached Calcutta on the 22d of February, and was sworn in as Governor-General on the 1st of March. Lord DALHOUSIE was to have left Calcutta for Suez on the 6th of March. The Santal districts are quiet for the present. From the continuance of rain a scarcity is apprehended throughout India. At Bombay trade has improved. The money market was easier. At Calcutta trade was languishing; Indigo has been steadily maintained. The import market has improved. Exchange at Calcutta, 2s. 8½d.; at Bombay 2s. 8¼d. The revenue and expenditure of Hong Kong show a surplus. The insurrection in China is unabating. Exchange at Canton 8s.; at Shanghae 4s. 7½d. The Alhambra, with the Marseilles mail, has not arrived at Alexandria.

Liverpool Cotton Market has been strengthened by the Peace news, and prices have advanced on "low" American ¼d.@¼d. ⅌ lb., and on other grades 1-16d.@⅛d., mostly ⅛d., with sales of 24,000 bales during the two days (Monday, 31st of March, and Tuesday, 1st of April,) including 6,000 on speculation. Middling Orleans quoted 6d.; Middling Mobile and Uplands 5⅞d. Total sales of the three days, since sailing of the Cambria, 30,000 bales, including 9,500 to speculators and importers. In Manchester there has been a steady demand for Yarns and Goods, but business has been checked by the advance asked by holders. The Africa's advices produced no effect on the Cotton Markets.

Breadstuffs continue dull, but prices have not receded. Present quotations are called for Wheat, red, 9s. 6d.@10 1d.; white, 10s.@11s. 6d. ⅌ 70 lbs.; Western Canal Flour, 80s.@84s.; Philadelphia and Baltimore, 80s.@86s. ⅌ bbl. White Indian Corn, top price, 36s.; mixed and yellow, 36s. 6d.

There is not much doing in PROVISIONS. Buyers of Beef still hold off, but holders show no disposition to give way in prices, and the business is, therefore, quite in retail. Pork is unchanged; there have been no parcels offering since last advices.

Considerable recent arrivals of Bacon had been offered at auction, and sold readily at full prices, ranging from 50s. 6d. and 54s. to 56s. Lard quiet at 54s.@56s., pending the landing of recent arrivals. Tallow steady, at late quotations.

Rosin is reported dull, at 4s. 7d.@4s. 8d. In Sugar a moderate business had been done at unchanged rates. Coffee quiet.

Since the declaration of Peace the upward movement in the Funds has been steady and decided, Consols advancing gradually to 93¼, at which quotation they close.

The Bank of France has reduced rate of discount from 6 per cent. to 5 per cent.

AFFAIRS IN FRANCE.

Signing of the Peace Documents—Rejoicings in Paris—The Peace Inkstand—The Countess Walewski, &c., &c.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

PARIS, Sunday evening, March 30, 1856.

AT LAST!

After one false alarm, the long suspense is over. Last Sunday the people, on the hint of the police, prepared for an immediate illumination. But, between the Sultan and M. DE MANTEUFFEL, another hard week's work was added to the labors of the Conference, and it was not till late last evening that the document was ready for signature. To-day, at 1 o'clock, the members of the Conference, in grand costume, repaired to the Council Chamber, and signed the document. At 2 o'clock 101 guns were fired from the Invalides, and from each of the eighteen forts which surround Paris. At 3 o'clock, the following proclamation, in large type, was posted on walls of the city:

COMMUNE OF PARIS, Sunday, March 30, 1856.

Peace was signed to-day at 1 o'clock, at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The Plenipotentiaries of France, Austria, Great Britain, Prussia, Russia, Sardinia, and Turkey, have affixed their signatures to the Treaty which puts an end to the present war, and which, in regulating the Eastern question, fixes the repose of Europe on solid and durable bases.

PIETRI, Prefect of Police.

The Treaty was drawn up by a Committee of one representative of each Government, from instructions drawn from each day's proceedings. The report of the Committee was adopted unanimously in the sitting of Saturday. Seven copies of this treaty were prepared on parchment, under the direction of M. FEUILLET, the head of the Protocol Department of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, one for each Government.

In signing, the Plenipotentiaries first examined carefully that each copy of the treaty corresponded. Count WALEWSKI, as President of the Conference, signed each of the seven copies first; then the representatives of each Government signed first in turn, so that the copy destined for each government will bear first after the signature of the President the signature of its own representative. After the President, and the two representatives of the Government to which the copy belonged, the rest signed in alphabetical order. In this manner all questions of jealousy in regard to precedence was avoided. The signing occupied an hour and a half, which is not curious, in view of the fact that there were three hundred and eighty-eight flourishes to make. There were seven copies of the treaty, and fourteen names to be signed to each, making in all ninety-eight names. The name of any individual in France, holding a higher position than that of domestic, signed without one or more characteristic flourishes, would be almost without moral force.

The treaty was signed with a quill prepared for the occasion. The Plenipotentiaries intended each to preserve the quill with which he signed his name and made his flourishes. But the Empress having expressed a desire to preserve the quill with which the treaty was signed, the Plenipotentiaries acceded to her wish, and a pen was accordingly prepared for this purpose. An eagle's quill was selected, which was elegantly mounted in gold. Why this bellicose emblem was chosen instead of a goose quill, does not appear.

The visit rendered by the Plenipotentiaries to the Emperor immediately after the signing of the treaty, was to give and to receive felicitations. Their labor, however, is far from being concluded. Couriers started this evening, for Constantinople, St. Petersburg, Berlin, Vienna, Turin, and London, each bearing a copy of the treaty for the ratification of the monarch of each country. But during the period of four weeks which will elapse before the treaty can be ratified, returned to Paris and given to the world, a series of minor points are to be considered and fixed by the conference. These subsidiary points can be discussed even after the ratification of the general treaty. For instance, in the protocol of Vienna (the Extraordinary protocol) the Plenipotentiaries said: "The new frontier (of Bessarabia) will start from the environs of Chetyna, and will follow the line of mountains which extends to the southeast." A subsequent examination shows that there are nothing but plains where mountains were supposed to have been seen. Again, the Danubian Principalities were promised an organization in conformity to their wishes; but these wishes are yet to be ascertained, and I imagine they will ascertain them rather slowly if they continue to stop the couriers who bear petitions. Again, the navigation of the Danube, the rights of those who live upon its borders, the keeping of the mouths of the river, suppose numerous regulations which have need of being prepared with time and care by special persons. These are a few of the most important details which the Conference will yet have to consider and fix, and they can as well be done after the signing of the treaty as before.

The Crimean army will remain until after the ratification.

The probable provisions of the treaty will form the subject of excitement for the next four weeks. Yet while the obligation of secrecy on the part of the Plenipotentiaries and their employés will remain as binding as ever, there is yet less reason for maintaining the obligation, and in consequence, the chances are in favor of its being divulged. But it can only be divulged piece by piece, and so long as these pieces are not by authority, they will only serve to increase the doubt and excitement. The Patrie of this evening, however, assures its readers that the treaty is of a nature to give a complete and legitimate satisfaction for the great interests for which France and England took up arms. This journal goes further, and insists that the four guarantees are largely applied, and that the fifth paragraph has been realized in a manner to give to Europe all the security she could desire, without at the same time humiliating Russia. But notwithstanding this assurance of the ministerial journal, a very large number of persons will persist in believing, until they know differently, that the peace is not based upon either a solid or a durable basis, and that it only affords an escape for Russia to gather strength and experience for another effort at a later period. The commentaries of the London journals find a ready echo in Paris at this moment, notwithstanding the journals attack that sheet without mercy. It is safe to say, I think, that the reports against the value and soundness of the treaty are too persistent and wide-spread not to have had a certain stamp of authority in their origin.

The illumination of the city this evening, although the weather is beautiful, does not appear so general as on the occasion of the birth of the Imperial prince. But this fact is readily explained. The illumination in the first instance was a personal mark of respect to the chief of state, which to avoid would have earned a black mark on the note-book of some police agent, while an abstinence on the occasion of the declaration of peace, carries with it no implication whatever of a nature to compromise the political standing of the individual. The illumination, however, is beautiful, but there appears no excitement in the street, by which one could judge that any unusual event had occurred. The French are a singular people; for if it had not been for the proclamations posted here and there on dead walls, one might walk from one end of the city to the other in a crowd of promenaders and not know the cause of the illumination from anything he should see or hear.

Fortunes never come singly. This morning, a few hours before the Count WALEWSKI signed the seven parchments which are to give a "solid and durable peace to Europe," the Countess WALEWSKI gave birth to a fine child of the female sex.

The inkstand which was used on the occasion of signing the peace, was made expressly to the order of the Conference, and cost eleven thousand francs! It is a monumental affair, decorated in the style of the first Empire. So you see that the members of the Conference are not wanting in an estimation of their own importance. In fact, all their movements, from the commencement, have betrayed an undignified degree of self-importance which would scarcely have been anticipated in such a body of really talented men.

The grand review of Tuesday in honor of Peace, will be composed of sixty thousand men. The Emperor has invited the Count OSMOND (who, as you know, is a high military officer) and his military suite to accompany him to the review. Marshals VAILLANT, MAGNAN, BARAGUAY D'HILLIERS, CASTELLANE, CANROBERT and ROGUET, will be in the suite, and a large number of foreign officers at this moment in Paris. MALAKOFF.

PEACE RESTORED.

Signing of the Treaty.

From the London Gazette Extraordinary.

A dispatch has been this morning received from the Earl of CLARENDON, Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, dated Paris, March 30, announcing the signature of peace at 2 o'clock on that day, at the Foreign Office in Paris.

The Plenipotentiaries of Great Britain, of Austria, of France, of Prussia, of Russia, of Sardinia, and of Turkey, have affixed their signatures to the treaty which puts an end to the war, and which, while definitively settling the Eastern question, establishes the tranquillity of Europe on solid and durable bases.

The exchange of the ratifications will take place at Paris in four weeks, or sooner, if possible; until that time the stipulations of the treaty cannot be made public.

From the Supplement to the London Gazette Extraordinary, March 31.

Hon. SPENCER PONSONBY arrived at the Foreign-office this morning from Paris, with the definitive treaty for the restoration of peace, and for the maintenance of the integrity and independence of the Ottoman Empire, which was yesterday signed at Paris by the Plenipotentiaries of Her Majesty, of the Emperor of the French, of the King of Sardinia, and of the Sultan, and also of the Emperor of Austria and of the King of Prussia, on the one part, and of the Emperor of all the Russias on the other.

From the Monitor, March 31.

"The Plenipotentiaries of the Congress met at noon yesterday, in uniform, at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, to sign the treaty. Immediately after the sitting all the Plenipotentiaries proceeded in a

ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES.

A Complete View of the Question.

To the Editor of the London Times:

SIR: [illegible] there may be, [illegible] which I have [illegible] of our people, [illegible] Cass beat out his brother's brains, [illegible] one of war, yet, thanks to the Christian [illegible] to the civilizing influences of [illegible] better instruction of communities and, by [illegible] the increased pressure of public opinion upon public action, wars have become [illegible] and of late years [illegible]. Few and seldom, however, are the obligations which any nation in our day is under to its Ministers—its hired servants—for a peaceful present, or for the prospect of a peaceful future. Every improvement in respect to these must be discussed in large preoccupation to private individual excellence, and very seldom to official worth. Theoretically, the best and wisest man rule over us, but practically they seem the worse of peace and war when backed by results and whenever the ends which crown their works are compared with the ends which crown the works of others, who serve directly neither Prince nor President, nor any power Supreme.

Over a long, prolonged, distracted and dispirited matter, of which the immediate subjects of discussion, which any clear-headed man or honest gentleman could have settled in the course of 24 hours, have thrown into violent commotion two nations, which, in the words of one of your ministers, "are bound together more than two nations ever were by similar interests." The late Minister of the United States to England, I am told, on good authority, was assured from the moment of his arrival in that country of the ardent desire of the English Government to be well quit of Central America and of everything pertaining to it, provided that the riddance could be effected without any sacrifice of honor. And what was there to prevent your shaking off such an unprofitable incumbrance, I should like to know, without stopping to question the wisdom of ever having assumed it? The only answer which I have as yet received, that it would not do for you to be cheated and bullied out of your asserted rights, is far from being satisfactory. What we behold an empty-handed individual in cotton frock, boldly asserting his real or supposed rights in front of a steel-clad gentleman, revolver in hand, that man we see "waxing down as an ass," if we will, or otherwise him feel, but cowardly bully—companions these altogether, while not vernacular shall remain in joint.

In spite of incessant and indecent charges against the American character in the European press, both of recent and ancient date, I much doubt if Americans are more possessed of the spirit of bullyism than other men. With their handful of ships opposed to your navy, "such as ocean never bore before," and with their apology for an army as set in array against an English force, "such as no Englishman ever yet commanded," I put it to your common sense and good judgment whether it is likely that my countrymen ever entertained the wild and silly notion of browbeating yours. It is impossible, nay, it is treason, the attempt to start the whiter mane of bleeding Saxon English to Americans shoulders. The "letting out of waters" begun on this side of the ocean, when you sent to Washington a negotiator of treaties who had proved himself at Madrid, as I heard his fellow diplomatist call him, "Le moins fatiliomed de tous les hommes d'esprit." But it must be owned, on the other hand that his American collaborator in that bungling job, the Bulwer-Clayton Treaty, going nothing by comparison with him. There, much mischief was caused by Lord GRANVILLE's indictment speech about the English and French superintendence of American affairs, the ill effects of which he tried every means but the right one to remedy. Instead of simply telling his fellow lords that a wrong construction had been put upon his words (a declaration which would have been hailed by every American with delight and unbounded credence), his Lordship, it seems, contented himself with writing a note to Gen. WEBB, having a talk with Mr. BUCHANAN, and sending a dispatch to Mr. CRAMPTON. And now, after the lapse of many months, by a rare chance, the parties who are most interested begin to see a little daylight where, indeed, there ought never to have been the slightest obscurity. Was there ever a more slovenly procedure? Quite as carelessly was the arbitration proposition managed. Her Majesty's Secretary for Foreign Affairs spoke about it to the American Minister in London, wrote about it to her representative in Washington, then discoursed about it and of its rejection and renewal, and now the whole turns out to be a great mistake and mystification. Time has been lost, ill-feelings have been aroused, unfounded complaints have been uttered, and the work must be commenced anew. Is it for such trifling that men in office are paid and pampered? Afterwards comes the enlistment affair—"a ridiculous cause of quarrel," you may say, but for that very reason the more dangerous, and the more quickly to be disposed of in peaceful fashion. If England and America are doomed to fight, for the comfort of the chronicler now and ever, if from no higher motives) let it be for something tangible, definable, and of real importance—something which one side insists upon having, and which the other persists in refusing. In such a fight the parties would have that least the satisfaction. Knowing which of them carried the point in dispute. But, even in this matter of enlistment, it was not the Americans who lifted the "first stone." Your sagacious rulers "relied on American advice and information," they say, when the only advice and information they needed were to be met with in law books common to everybody. Your special pleading in their behalf is a deal too fine. They would not for the world "hire or retain" on American soil, contrary to written law, a single man to serve Queen VICTORIA; but they would "make generally known" their willingness to receive such service. And pray where is the mighty difference in the eye of morality and of honor, aye, and even of law itself, if the question could be fairly tested, between impudently "hiring and retaining" by high inducements my neighbor's servants or dependants to quit his roof for mine, and the "making it generally known" to them that if they will sneakingly give me the preference a warm reception shall await them? Then, the enlisting agents must needs "make generally known" their mission on every wall and from every housetop. Indeed, so openly and successfully did they perform their parts, that even the "Bluenoses" of Nova Scotia, whom that veracious historian, Mr. Samuel Slick, never accused of "smartness," mocked at the sharp-sighted Yankees for having been outwitted by Provincials.

But, as it turned out, those who were acting as enrollers, directly or indirectly, for the English Government, had blundered from the beginning: "like master, like man." Their manœuvres might possibly have been winked at, had they not been forced upon the attention of the public; and much bickering would have thus been spared. At one time, the stoppage of proceedings by authority of English Ministers, and an apology, with promise of forbearance for the future, seemed about to set all things right, when an untoward discovery came to show how difficult it is to repair a first false step. The English Minister at Washington is now charged with being an accomplice in the "ridiculous affair." Incredible as is the accusation, still more incredible is it that, without incontrovertible proof, such an accusation should have been brought against a gentleman of Mr. CRAMPTON's talents and virtues by those who have always held him in the highest esteem.

And here, in the 1856th year of the Lord of Peace, are seen two great nations, who have not in their common blood a single drop of bitterness the one towards the other, nor in their common concerns a single cause for shedding blood, in a state of uncertainty whether they may not wake some morning to find themselves defacing God's image in the person of a kinsman, and destroying by wholesale the witty inventions of man, such as none but a being once little lower than the angels could have devised. In America as in England, the square and the round holes are most mathematically filled; and, impatient of seeing the material interests of nations handled about, it sometimes fancy, forgetful for the moment of interests infinitely higher, that if a CROMWELL or a NAPOLEON could come to judgment now and then, the right men might fall into the right places, and that the world would swing more easily on its hinges than it does just at this moment in your country or in mine.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

A Reply to General Case.

From the London Times, March 31.

We must own to a strange confusion of sentiment. As a journal cannot often confess to a mistake, we will out with the matter. It is the speech of a distinguished American Senator, occupying no little space in our Saturday's columns, that drawn from us this unaccustomed confession. We certainly did think that the American Government was disposed to ride the high horse with us; as far as we could construe their words, they declined to allow any arbitration between us; they would maintain their own view against the law and judgment of the whole universe besides; they would either have their way or see which was the stronger. Misguided beings, as we are, these were the suggestions of Old World, matter and British pride. No, it America dislikes arbitration, it is because the very thought is as hamlet to her pacific intentions. What arbitration should there be between sisters,—what can express the cause of a lamb better than its own innocent bleatings? With Mr. Cass for a peacemaker, the United States needs no foreign umpire. It must be our fault if we hold out on the smallest point when he pleads to our brotherly love, our many affinities, and our common history. Mr. Cass recoils with virtuous horror from the charge of a "bellicose disposition" brought against him, even by a friend from Tennessee. All that he desires is that his country should be spared "humiliating concessions." He and his own countrymen desire no war with England. At his time of life his only hope is to die at peace with us and all mankind. It is because he trembles for this one hope that he so earnestly inoculates a better feeling on the press of this country. He only asks that the States of the Old World may regard the American Government as one Christian regards another—that it may not be tabooed and declared a political leper, and excluded from the company of the Sovereign Powers of the world. Was there ever a more moderate request? The whole tone of his speech is that of the lamb when it has first heard the snarl and [illegible] [illegible] Mr. CASS. His "certain lecturer" to his downfellow-Saxons in these isles are made up of the most unpleasant materials; a gentleman frequently coalesting together. He begins with assuring the Senate that England has been taught by recent experience to yield to the representations of prudence what she might refuse to the dictates of justice; that she has come out of the great struggle with the loss of military prestige, with disappointed hopes, and wounded national vanity, arising from the greater success of her humiliation; but "Bluster" has become more violent. It is, forsooth, "arrogance" in us to feel annoyed at the tone of the American Congress, and cavers of that "spirit of assumption" so often displayed in our "history." Mr. CASS declares that he says "not single examples, either formerly or recently, in English history, of such careful attention to the feelings of other nations, as would be shown, by a desire to discuss differences in an unofficial manner. He charges the people and press of England with violent denunciations of the United States and their position, and with such a lavish employment of abuse as to have attained a sort of climax in the present discussion. He calls the articles of our leading journals "profane exhibitions of good taste and good feeling;" and as the particular articles he quotes are written with a union of moderation and firmness, the moderation he ascribes to our being cowed by Gladstone, the firmness to his calls mere bullying. He talks of this "depraved sentiment of aversion which animates the public mind of this country towards the United States." Of course he does not omit the opportunity for bringing up the surrender of BURGOYNE's army, and our occasional loss of a frigate to the United States' navy. He chuckles over what he pronounces our utter failure to accomplish our object in the war with Russia. He charges us with incessant wars of aggrandisement, and with designs upon the United States, which, however, the Americans can defeat by the very simple process of putting what construction they please on every treaty between the two nations, and interpreting with the rifle the ambiguities of the pen. On a comparison of these flowers of American rhetoric it appears that in one way can we escape being at the same time the most insolent, the most treacherous, the most dangerous, the most cowardly, the most contemptible, the most designing, the most ignorant, the most short-sighted, the most obstinate, the most yielding, the most bluestering, and at the same time the most craven people in the world. And this description of us forms the staple of an argument for peace, taking credit for the opposite qualities in the citizens of the United States, and representing the present difference as coming entirely out of the bad tone of feeling on this side the Atlantic! We have contented ourselves with simply stating the fact, with quoting from Mr. CASS' homily his exhortations to brotherly love, and his own exemplification of that virtue. The only comment we make is to ask the American public—which, on our word, we believe to be very like the British public—whether Mr. CASS is a genuine specimen of the American dove, and his speech is a true sprig from the American olive? We have too much respect for the United States to believe that Mr. CASS is anything but Mr. CASS—a very intemperate and very foul-mouthed old fellow.

[illegible]

To the general question, apart from the agreeable episodes imported into it by this amiable gentleman, we have only to call the attention of the Americans to two or three points which they may take on our word. The British people hear "no ill will whatever to the American people; they have no designs whatever against them, and take quite as much pleasure in hearing of the unbounded extension of the Anglo-Saxon family, language, commerce, religion, and laws in the New World as the Americans can possibly do themselves. They don't think it worth while to rake up the histories of the American wars, and are almost to a man of opinion that the Americans were in the right to assert their independence, and deserved all their success. They would certainly feel a war with the United States to be an unnatural, discreditable, and inevitably unfortunate one, inasmuch as neither side could gain honor by it, nor any advantage which peace will not bring spontaneously in time. They are of opinion that two such great, populous, wealthy, and energetic States could not possibly go to war without inflicting great losses upon one another, and that, such is our common interest in peace, that the triumphs and the disasters of either side would be almost indifferently disasters to the other. They would much prefer that neither side should suffer any loss of honor; they are, however, bound to look after themselves; and are only desirous to make no greater concessions to the United States than they would to any great European State. The gentleman whose speech we have commented on above says that the public press, and we in particular, are faithful exponents of public opinion in this country. On his own showing, then, we appeal to the American public to accept as a sentence that we have no other wish whatever than to get out of these quotations without improper and needless humiliation; but that we certainly shall think it due to our character and position not to make greater concessions to the United States than we should to any other Power in the world.

Letter from Kossuth.

To the Editor of the London Times:

SIR: The letter of Mr. WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR, headed "A Plea for M. KOSSUTH," and your own remarks on it, put me in the disagreeable position of troubling you. Allow me to state in your paper that not only have I had no knowledge of what Mr. W. SAVAGE LANDOR thought fit to do, but I find no words sufficiently expressive of the deep mortification and regret I have felt on reading Mr. LANDOR's appeal. In doing full justice to the noble generosity of his intentions I consider his letter extremely injudicious and uncalled for, inasmuch as, whatever be my private circumstances, I never want to consider them the sacred domain of family life.

As to your remarks on the "immorality" of the struggle which it has been my destiny to lead, you must allow me to say thus much in return—that you must be perfectly ignorant of its nature and character, or else you could not think of perverting historical truth to that extent.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

L. KOSSUTH.

England's Revenue.

From the London Daily News, April 1.

The Revenue returns for the year and quarter ended yesterday will be found in another column. We learn from them that there is a net increase on the returns for the quarter, as compared with the corresponding quarter of 1855, of £1,477,445; and a net increase on returns for the year ended 31st March, 1856, as compared with those for the year ended 31st March, 1855, of £8,497,672. The returns for the quarter show an immense under every head of revenue, except Stamps and Post-Office; those for the year show a similar increase, except under the heads Stamps, Taxes, and Post-Office. The increase in the Property Tax returns is attributable, no doubt, to the augmented percentage of that impost; that in the Customs and Excise must probably be ascribed mainly to the war taxes in those departments. It has also to be noted that in addition to the increased returns of ordinary revenue, Government have raised, during the quarter just ended, nearly three millions, and a half by the issue of Exchequer Bills and Bonds, and have received a trifle more than three millions and a half in instalments of the Loan of £8,500,000. There will also have to be issued, in the course of the quarter which has just commenced, Deficiency Bills to the amount of about two millions and a half. This assuredly is no very alarming state of our financial affairs at the close of a two years' war. We cannot look for an immediate abatement in the rates of war taxation; there are outstanding bills still to be provided for, and our military and naval establishments cannot be reduced from a war footing in a day. But it is a striking exemplification of the power and resources of Great Britain, that a war which has exhausted Russia, and made even France stagger, appears likely to impose upon us burdens scarcely greater than we have our now incurred to relieve an Irish famine—a calamity less than we voluntarily imposed upon ourselves to put down the slave trade and emancipate the negroes in our colonies.

Hostile Scene at an Execution.

A wretched creature named ROMBYFIELD was executed on the 31st ult at Newgate, for the murder of his wife and three children. The London [illegible]

[illegible] when the prisoner, in his dead drop on his breath not returned, which, notwithstanding the terror of death [illegible] the hour appointed for the execution, nothing arrived, the prisoner was standing after read, and in that manner conveyed to the scaffold. As he approached the public [illegible] it seemed, it was agreed the best course to take was to place the chair under the beam; and he was positioned in that position by one of the assistants while CALCRAFT fixed the rope in its proper position. Rev. Mr. DAVIS accompanied the wretched man; but, from his apparent state, it appeared useless to perform the usual offices of religion. When the signal was given the chair on which the wretched man was still seated, of course gave way with the drop, and consequently the fall was not nearly so great as it is under ordinary circumstances; and at this dreadful moment the prisoner attempted to carry out the desperate struggle he had evidently contemplated. The [illegible] of the falling form, scarcely passed away when there was a shriek from the crowd of "He is up again!" and to the horror of every one it was found that the prisoner by a powerful muscular effort had drawn himself up completely to the level of the drop, that both his feet were resting upon the edge of it, and he was vainly endeavoring to raise his hands to the rope. One of the officers immediately rushed upon the scaffold, and pushed the wretched man's feet from their hold, but in an instant by a violent effort, he threw himself to the other side, and again succeeded in getting both his feet on the edge of the drop. CALCRAFT, who had left the scaffold, imagining that all was over, was called back; he seized the wretched criminal, but it was with considerable difficulty that he forced him from the scaffold, and he was again suspended. The short relief the wretched man had obtained from the pressure of the rope by these desperate efforts had probably enabled him to respire, and, to the astonishment and horror of all the spectators, he a third time succeeded in placing his feet upon the platform, and again his hands vainly attempted to reach the fatal cord. CALCRAFT and two or three other men then again forced the wretched man's feet from their hold, and his legs were held down until the final struggle was over. While this fearful scene was being enacted the bells of the different neighboring churches were ringing merrily upon the announcement of peace, offering a sad contrast to the melancholy proceeding.

Important Reforms in Russian Poland.

Paris (March 30) Correspondence of the London Post.

I have received communications from St. Petersburg dated the 19th. If my informant be correct, very important reforms are about to take place in Russian Poland. The following, it is said, are the concessions about to be conceded:

1. A general amnesty for all political offences.
2. The introduction of the Polish language into the universities.
3. A new division of provinces and revision of frontiers.
4. Permission to wear the Polish uniform.

It is thought by this means to attach all Poles to the cause of Russia, and forever obliterate the idea of independence. It remains to observe that reports like the above have frequently found circulation without meaning anything whatever. The police of Warsaw occasionally set such gossip going for ascertaining political opinion. But on the present occasion I am assured that the Russian Government is sincere, and the specified boons will be accorded.

THE VERY LATEST.

BY TELEGRAPH FROM LONDON TO LIVERPOOL.

LONDON, Wednesday Morning, April 2.

FRANCE.

The Moniteur of yesterday announced that by especial decrees the award of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor is conferred on Count WALEWSKI, and the Baron DE BOURQUENAY is raised to the dignity of a Senator. Official journals also announce the Emperor's decision that the soldiers of the class of 1849, who have been retained until this time under the military banners, shall be restored to their homes. Orders for the immediate execution of the will of the Emperor have already been issued by the Ministry of War.

The ceremonial announcement of the conclusion of peace was made to the Senate and Corps Legislatif on Monday, in the words previously employed to announce the fact in the Moniteur.

To this proclamation the Minister of State added: "The Emperor has charged that in bringing the fact to your knowledge I should thank you for the patriotic support which you have always afforded him and which, with the admirable devotedness of the allied fleets and armies, has so powerfully contributed to the happy issue of the war."

THE PEACE.

It has already been stated that the members of the Conference have still to perfect a number of secondary arrangements essential to the new state of relations to be established in the East.

Le Nord says that the organisation of the Principalities is one of these reserved subjects, and the Débats points out, as another, the special regulations necessary for assuring the free navigation of the Danube.

MARSEILLES, Tuesday.

AYRE BEY embarked, last night, from this port, bearing the treaty to Constantinople for the ratification of the Sultan.

A French officer of rank also embarked on a special mission to the Sultan from the Emperor of the French.

Admiral SYMONS died on his passage from Malta to Marseilles.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

The announcement of the conclusion of peace in the Prussian Chambers, yesterday, was received with cheers.

Commercial Intelligence.

From the Daily News City Article, of Tuesday evening.

The Funds maintained great firmness. The closing quotations were almost as good as those of yesterday. In the other Stock Exchange markets there is still considerable disposition to operate for higher prices, but this tendency was rather kept in check to-day, by the resistance which have been prompted by the late marked rise. The hope of an easier Money market gains great support. The opinion gains ground that the Bank of England will shortly admit to discount, at 5 ⅌ cent., first-class Bills, having 75 days to mature, instead of charging 7 ⅌ cent. as at present. With this prospect, which is strengthened by the favorable state of the exchanges and by the large arrival of Gold, we judge that the Government will require another loan during the present session, fails to check the firmness of the Stock Markets. The Discount Market was, to-day, quieter. In the Stock Exchange the demand for Money continues good, and may grow brisker in the event of speculation for a rise becoming more extended. At Foreign Stocks, yesterday afternoon, the only feature of interest was a decline in the quotation for three months' bills on Paris. The Railway Share Market continues good.

The Times city article says: "The English Funds opened steadily this morning at the improved prices of yesterday, and were steadily maintained to the close, notwithstanding the occurrence of a further heavy fall on the Paris Bourse. In the early part of the day there was a great pressure for Money in the Stock Exchange, but the demand subsided in the afternoon. At the Bank of England the applications were not numerous."

FROM UTAH.

A Bold Enterprise—The Deseret Express and Road Company—Mormonism Speculative—The Beach Laying Aside the Bruise—Miscellaneous.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, Thursday, Jan. 31, 1856.

LEGISLATIVE.

The Legislature adjourned on the 18th. HEBER KIMBALL, at the Tabernacle, last Sunday, as a member, thus humorously summed up the doings of that body. "When we arrived at Fillmore, (he says,) we found no new laws were wanted, there being more old laws than the people could obey; we, therefore, went to work and unmade some. But we hat to stay out our full time, in order to pocket our $3 a day; so we spent our time in staking the earth out into herd grounds. There has been considerable talk about getting our legislatural sessions extended to sixty days; but if we had been compelled to stay that long we should have starved to death for want of something to do."

A BOLD ENTERPRISE.

Before adjourning, the Legislature chartered a company, under the name of the "Deseret Express and Road Company." The scheme of the Company is to establish from ten to twenty-mile stations along the road between here and California, and some point on the Missouri River—wagons and tents to serve as stations at first. At each station there will be placed three men and six horses, or mules, at the commencement. The route between here and the State to be much shorter than the old road; and from here to California by the lately discovered "short route," making a distance of about 1,700 miles in all. Over this route it is calculated to begin by carrying a weekly, and, when the business admits, a daily express, making the time between the States and San Francisco in ten days, or seven, when necessity requires. The price for letters, the cheapest source of profit, is not yet fixed, but will be about $1 each.

MAIL CONTRACTS.

On Saturday last a large meeting of about five thousand persons convened at the Tabernacle, in this city, to take action on the subject. Governor Young was appointed President, and Messrs. Wells, Dr. G. Kay, E. G. Kimball, Parley P. Pratt, Hickens, J. M. Grant, A. W. Babbitt, Justice G. [illegible], Sen., Wm. Clayton, Vice Presidents; Dr. P. P. [illegible], E. Ball and W. Cecil, Vice Presidents; O. Hyde, W. H. Hooper and W. Woodruff, Secretaries; and Geo. D. Watt, Reporter.

The general tone discernible from the remarks of the speakers, were, that the plan will prove not only of great benefit to Utah, but to the world; that it will be immensely profitable; that the great weight of franked matter will render the carrying of the mail by horses unprofitable, besides ruining the express business; that the Company can successfully compete with steamers in the mail contract, and transport the mail daily, by an inland, from Independence to San Francisco in twenty days; that in a short time the Company will be able to place coaches on the route and monopolize most of the passenger business between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts; that in six years they will have a Pacific Railroad in operation.

Two resolutions, stating the urgent necessity of such a line, were adopted; after which Gov. Young made a few remarks, wherein he stated that the plan was not a novelty, but that five years ago Col. Benton of Missouri came on here, and wanted him to engage in and countenance such an enterprise; he, however, was not prepared then, so he did not think the time suitable.

The meeting finally adjourned to meet on Saturday next, when a matured plan will be submitted to the approval of the people. The scheme will not differ materially, however, from the one given above.

I look upon the success of the undertaking as a fixed certainty. As one of the speakers at the meeting remarked, "Capital cannot make the plan succeed; it is men that are wanted; every man is worth more than his weight in gold; and Utah is a rich bank of men." It is certain that in no other community exists so much of the right materials for executing this grand design. There are here hundreds of brave, hardy spirits, who, through choice, rather than necessity, have spent the last eight years of their lives on the prairies and among the mountains, and have almost every reality to dress California in the garb of a dream. They understand the Indian character, and know how to retain the red man's friendship; or, when that fails, to defend themselves against their attacks.

I will here state, for the information of the Bulls and Bears of Wall-street, that, as far as I can learn, the Company will be an exclusive affair of the Capitalists of Utah, and that no stock will be issued.

The ox-mail train is not a joke. The cattle, with medium loads, will make their short trips at the rate of three-and-a-half miles an hour, which is eighty-four miles a day, of twenty-four hours.

The prime mover and practical spirit of this bold enterprise is a rough mountaineer, whom Col. STUART designated as smart as the smartest uncducated man he has ever met—Jerome Benoweski, famous as having been tried, some years ago, on suspicion of shooting Gov. BOGGS, of Missouri.

Arrangements are being made by the Company to carry their plan into immediate execution. The first Express will leave here about the beginning of April, if the snow in the mountains will permit an early departure of men and provisions. Shortly after perusing this letter, the people of the Atlantic States will be within two weeks' communication with the Pacific coast.

APPROPRIATIONS WANTED.

The Legislature chartered the "Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing Company," reapportioned the Territorial Representation, and so arranged the Judicial Districts as to make it possible for the three United States Judges to hold their Courts without proceeding to any great distance from this city; and also memorialized Congress for an appropriation of $50,000 for the State House; for an appropriation of $200,000 for a road from Bridger's Pass in the Rocky Mountains to California; for the refunding of the expense of determining boundary points; for the right of way for a telegraph from the Missouri River to California, and for grant of lands and a daily mail between the same points.

STRAGGLERS OF THE COURT.

There seems to have been plenty of excitement and fun at Fillmore during the Legislatural session. At the party in the State-House, a lawyer was acting the gentoo with considerable affectation to the ladies, while a large placard labeled "Jackass" decorated his back, much to the amusement of many present, to whom he had rendered himself odious by a speech in Court the day before. There being but one case before the Supreme Court, the Judges and lawyers were compelled to resort to the "spirits," for evidence of the future existence of litigation, and to keep up their reputation at the bar. The three Judges, therefore, managed to get drunk quite often. From sprecing, the officials proceeded to quarreling, and were all mixed up in a sort of quadrangular duel. Secretary BARRET was placed in irons by Judge DRUMMOND on some trifling charge. The next thing was what Mayor GRAVE terms "a quirrel between Heem, Him and Japhet." Judge Drummond and his deputy slave were placed in irons for several days; on the charge of attempting to murder a few named ARMAS, whom they detected concocting a new and peculiar game of cards, wherein they considered they were being insulted. BARRET has since sued DRUMMOND for false imprisonment. The other two Judges managed to act admirably their parts as auxiliaries.

THE PLAINS.

Last Christmas, a young man named JOHN KING, of Columbia, Boone Co., Miss., who, with another, had been left in charge of some cattle belonging to T. S. WILLIAMS & Co., at the Weber River, forty miles east of this city, attempted to cross the mountains, with a pony, to this city. Not returning in twelve days, his comrade followed his tracks, and found his body five miles from camp, where he had been frozen to death, while retracing his way pony-less back to camp. The survivor, taking two mules, four oxen and a Winter's supply of provisions, set out for this city by a different route, and arrived four days afterwards, with the loss of the mules and two oxen.

The merchant trains yearly bring to this place, as teamsters, numbers of men bound for California. Many of these manage to get a good outfit by stealing the cattle and goods of the citizens. Four such characters were last Tuesday sentenced to fourteen months' hard labor in the Penitentiary for burglariously entering the store of BLAIR, GREEN & Co., a few days before.

There are three eastern mails now due; two of these might have safely came in if the contractors had chosen to slightly exert themselves. This month's mail for the East returned after striving four days to get through the snow on the mountains, and only making twenty miles headway. There will be no mail for the East next month; our only resort is ed California. It is likely, however, that the new Express Company will silence all complaints in future.

KADZ-NE-ATE.

NEW-YORK CITY.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

PASSING SPURIOUS MONEY—SEIZURE OF COUNTERFEITING IMPLEMENTS.

A young woman named Cordelia Johnson was brought before Justice DAVINSON yesterday, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, charged with attempting to pass a counterfeit bank bill.

Samuel Cardwell stated for the prosecution that on the previous night (Wednesday) the prisoner came into his store, No. 405 Third-avenue, and purchased a bill of dry goods amounting to about 50c, and in payment therefor offered a counterfeit bank note purporting to be an issue of the Merchants' Bank of Newburyport, Mass. Discovering at once the character of the bill he sent for the woman and had her taken in custody by a policeman.

Thomas Bradburne, a policeman of the Twenty-first District, deposed, that he arrested the prisoner at the store of the prosecutor, and conveyed her to the Twenty-first Ward station-house; early next morning he went to the residence of the accused—a four-story back room in Twenty-second street, near Third-avenue, and, upon examining the premises, he found a $20 bill, on the Ohio Bank, New-York; a $10 bill on the State Bank of Providence, R. I.; a $5 bill on the Columbia Bank of Boston, Mass.; a $5 bill on the Merchants' Bank of Newburyport, Mass., all counterfeit; also one copper die, a small hand-press, a complete set of engravers' tools, and other articles pertaining to the forgery of bank notes; he found no one in the premises but a boy of about eleven years of age, and him he took to the Station-house.

The prisoner, in reply to the questions put to her in court, said that she was the wife of Henry Johnson; that she was his second wife, and that he boy found in her house was the son of her husband by his first wife. She further stated that her husband was a farmer in Broome County, and that she resided there with him since her marriage, until about four weeks since, when she removed with him to this City. Her husband is now absent from the City on a visit to his farm. The die found, she acknowledged to have been her husband frequently used, but stated that she knew not for what purpose. All the bills are very coarsely done, and could hardly deceive the most inexperienced.

In a pocket-book found in possession of the prisoner was a slip from a former newspaper, giving an account of the arrest in that city of "an old, daring counterfeiter," named D. D. Newman.

The prisoner was committed for examination. While being taken down stairs to the prison, a pair of black jeans was observed beneath her dress. When questioned as to it, she acknowledged that she had on a pair of men's cassimere pants, and added that she wore them because it pleased her so to do.

LOST HIS MONEY.

Richard E. Warren had said stolen from him on board the steamboat Oregon yesterday. He came down from Albany in the boat. On retiring to his state room he put his money beneath his pillow. On landing in the morning he forgot to take his money with him; he found out his loss in a few minutes, and returned on board; but the boat had left for Boston. No money was found, but a valise named Putnam was arrested on suspicion of being the thief; before direct evidence of his guilt could be ascertained, his case, however, was taken before Justice WELSH, at the Lower Police Court, and committed for examination.

CHARGED WITH RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS.

Joseph and Moses Jonas, of No. 208 Tenth-street, were yesterday arraigned before Justice WELSH, charged with receiving stolen goods.

Lewis Quinn, of the firm of Lewis Quinn & Co., of Philadelphia, made affidavit that on the 24th inst. his store was broken into and robbed of over $2,000 worth of silk goods, and that a portion of the property in question was found in the possession of the accused. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] A telegraphic dispatch from New-Haven announces the acquittal yesterday afternoon of the Wakemanites concerned in the killing of JUSTUS W. MATTHEWS, on the sole ground of insanity. The parties, three in number, were all tried on one indictment, and the result was generally anticipated.

Peace.

By the arrival of the Baltic, we are in possession of four days' later news than that received by the Canada. The one and all-engrossing feature is the declaration of Peace. The storm which during the past two years shook Europe is at length stilled. At 1 o'clock, on the 30th of March, the Plenipotentiaries assembled in Paris, signed the Treaty, and on the 31st the roar of the guns which precisely two years and two days previous had thundered forth from London Tower the declaration of war, bore along the river through the good old city the glorious tidings that peace was made. It would be useless to speculate upon the precise terms of the treaty by which this object has been attained. Its general terms are, however, no secret. The preliminary protocol which was signed has been published, and the 26th article—if such has been added—alone remains a mystery. Although virtually agreed on, the signature of the different Sovereigns is necessary to give it final publication, and it will occupy three weeks before the ratifying autograph of ALEXANDER can be obtained. During the interregnum of diplomacy, the various journals of the different Powers occupy themselves in reviewing their own position, and that of their contending neighbors. As each of these reviewing pictures is naturally drawn with a somewhat roseate self-adulation, we prefer to publishing them to give in a few words what appears to us the true situation of the several parties to the war which has just ended.

The war has certainly in a large measure dissipated the military prestige of England, which at its opening was considered the foremost European power. Many long-cherished illusions of the superiority of her "governmental system" were in the first year rudely broken. Many hallucinations which past memories and the overweening self estimate they inspired had rooted in England's heart have been scattered. Her system was proved a failure, her aristocratic generals incapable, her commissariat and medical departments wholly out of joint, and nothing remained for her but that which has never forsaken her, and which even now has brought her gallantly through all disasters,—the brilliant valor and heroic endurance of her men. She has probably lost a hundred millions of money that might otherwise be expended in industrial enterprise. She has lost some thirty thousand of the flower of her people. There were few door-posts whose lintels were sprinkled, and there is scarcely a household in England on which the angel of destruction has not trodden as he passed. She has gained little in return for this, in a material point of view. But in a moral, much. With all her shortcomings she has shown an extent of resources, a dogged courage, an enduring good faith, and a stern generosity, which bear to her will the most adverse circumstances, and leave, even out of all ill-fortune, final success. She leaves the field, in physical force, fresher and fresher than any other power.

France, or rather LOUIS NAPOLEON, has come out of the war with the greatest triumph. All his personal objects have been attained. His dynasty has been acknowledged, and his reputation as the ablest sovereign of Europe firmly set. He has asserted for France the right, which if she was had but lasted another year, she must have ceded to England, of being the first military power, and has brought her off the scene precisely at the moment when she had reached the highest point of position she could attain.

As to Russia, she has been taught the great fallacy in which her weakness lay. She has been shown that a purely military policy is unequal to carry out military designs, and that vast armies and navies are as nothing when the means of using and supporting them are not on hand. Indeed, from the concessions the Emperor has made, it would appear that he had awakened to this conviction, and that the old Muscovite idea will no longer reign. Russia wants commerce, capital, and commerce—its and the sinews of war, wealth. After all her expensive military preparations, she finds that a [illegible] are never conducted against a free and enlightened people. Within two years she has [illegible] a million of soldiers, a large [illegible] formidable fortress, and all her [illegible] gone. It is evident she finds [illegible] her margin to [illegible] through her vast territories and [illegible] poism of her [illegible] Turkey, [illegible] a free [illegible] the Kuxine [illegible] resources, she may be in fifty years four times more powerful than she is now, and have to bless the war which led her to such a career of retrogression.

The war may thus prove a source of strength to Russia. What will it be to Turkey? To what a condition is that Empire reduced which is destined for years to have its capital and coasts occupied by foreign armies? The Governments of England and France have announced "that they do not intend for a long time to relax their hold of that unhappy country." As soon as the treaty is signed, all that will remain to the Sultan of his sovereignty will be the red Fez.

For the rest, Hungary and Italy lie in their old condition; Germany is divided and bureaucratic; a strong coldness exists between the two great Protestant Powers, Prussia and England; the Pope has realized in Austria, in Naples, and in Italy, a power for which HILDEBRAND sighed and the GRACCHIS struggled in vain; while the Cossack Czar and the upstart Emperor of the French, whom he so scorned, are on a footing of the most delightful friendship. Henceforth the French eagles and Russian bear lie down together. How strange is the whirligig of time.

England and the United States.

The London Times insists that the United States are determined upon a war with Great Britain. Whenever it attempts to discuss the differences between the two countries, it starts with this assumption,—that the American Government is resolved upon war and seeks a pretext for it in the alleged violation by England of the Central American Treaty, and in her attempted enlistment of troops in the United States. The Times of the 1st of April, takes occasion to compare the policy of the American Government with that of Russia; and after establishing to its own satisfaction the similarity of the "two empires," it proceeds to say:

"Now, it is rather a remarkable thing, and to be noted in the history of human delusions, that at the very moment when the one bubble has burst, when Russia's dream of irresistible power and endless dominion has been rudely and finally dispelled, the other Power, the self-boasted parallel, the brother in boundless pretension and special immunity, so far from taking warning by the fate of its compeer, is at this moment carrying to the same suicidal folly—a war, not of self-defence, but of wanton defiance, the sole and avowed object of which is the assumption of a political position above all the rest of the world."

If England were determined upon a war with this country, this is the precise language in which her organs would proclaim that purpose. But we do not believe that either the Government or the people of Great Britain, cherish any such sentiments or meditate hostilities against this country. And we are certain that not the slightest foundation exists for the imputations of the Times against the Government and the people of the United States. That man, in either country, who should desire war would be a fit subject for Bedlam. And that Government of either nation which would look to war as a possible event, until every conceivable mode of adjusting differences had been resorted to without effect, would merit, as we are confident it would receive, the burning condemnation of the people it would misrepresent.

The Times seems inclined to use its vast influence to exasperate international animosities and to render the peaceful adjustment of disputed points impossible. Its power, great as it is, cannot accomplish this result. The common sense of the English people will revolt at such a consummation. Nor will that journal succeed in convincing its readers that the course of the United States in regard to the Enlistment Question, has been unreasonable or indicative of hostility to Great Britain. We commend the letter written by an intelligent American in Europe, and signed a "A STATES' MAN," which we copy in another column. It states the case clearly and strongly, and relieves this country from the imputations which have been urged against it.

Presidential.

The business of President-making is beginning to be brisk. Each of the political parties suffers an internal commotion from the effort of individuals to bring forward their favorites. In the Democratic ranks the contest thus far is mainly between PIERCE and BUCHANAN,—though half a dozen other candidates are quietly awaiting the issue of their strife, in hopes of slipping in when both shall have been thrown overboard. The two-third rule, which has come to be the settled law of Democratic Conventions, renders it very difficult for any prominent candidate, against whom strong opposition is aroused, to obtain the nomination. But, at the same time, it renders it easy for such a candidate to prevent the success of his antagonist. It may happen, therefore, that PIERCE and BUCHANAN will each have strength enough to kill the other, without being able to compass the nomination himself. Anticipating such an issue, the friends of DOUGLAS, HUNTER, RUSK, and one or two other aspirants, are holding themselves aloof from the canvass. President PIERCE would be able probably to command the nomination, if his pretended friends were at all sincere. But none of them have any confidence in his success, if nominated; they are all, therefore, ready to desert him at the first opportunity, for a more available candidate.

The Republicans are equally busy and still more embarrassed. Mr. SEWARD would undoubtedly be their first choice;—and his nomination would be a matter of course, but for the fact, that in all the Western and the New-England States the Republican party owes its strength in a very great degree to its alliance with Americanism: and Mr. SEWARD took the precaution at a very early day, to reiterate his fixed hostility to the principles and policy of the American party. It is feared, by many, that his nomination would repel that party from the Republican ticket and thus insure its defeat. Governor CHASE has strong friends in Ohio, but out of that State the conviction is general that his nomination would not be popular. It is not at all unlikely that the Republicans will find it necessary to do, as all other parties have been compelled to do,—take up a new man—one not identified with the political struggles and animosities of the past.

[illegible] been diligently studying Col. BENTON for the course. It is supposed that he would concentrate the support of the Republicans and North Americans, and that he would be acceptable as a candidate to Young America generally. He has character, wealth and position,—what he lacks is political experience and a past career by which his future course may be predicted. Whether this defect will defeat or aid him, remains to be seen. Some of the Western Republicans are anxious for the nomination of Judge MCLEAN—while others at the East pronounce him too old fogyish, and go in for BANKS. The contest will be settled at Philadelphia on the 17th of June; and will probably be somewhat affected by the action of the Convention of the North Americans, to be held in this City on the 12th. The nomination of Mr. FILLMORE is dead as a door-nail already. The Northern members of the American party will probably endeavor to find a candidate who will also be adopted by the Republicans;—and if they succeed in this, they will enter upon the canvass with reasonable prospects of victory.

We are likely to have a stirring time, in the political world, during the month of June.

Southern Emigration.

We are glad to see that Southern politicians are beginning to be sensible of the folly of abusing the Kansas Emigration Societies which have been formed in several of the Northern States, and are taking the much more rational course of imitating their example. The Montgomery, Ala., Journal, in noticing the departure of 300 men from that city for Kansas, takes occasion to state, from personal knowledge, gathered on a recent trip to the seaboard, that measures are already effected to place in Kansas, before the October election, at least 6,000 Southern voters,—and that Kentucky, Louisiana, Arkansas, and other States, "backed by Missouri," stand ready at any moment to supply any balance of voters which may be necessary. This is a practical mode of endeavoring to meet the emergency. It shows that the South is thoroughly ashamed of its denunciations of the societies formed in Massachusetts for the purpose of settling Kansas, and that, instead of opposing them longer, it is prepared to enter into rivalry with them. This struggle for Kansas is an unavoidable result of the squatter-sovereignty doctrine. The Kansas bill left the inhabitants of Kansas to decide whether Slavery should or should not exist within its borders. It followed necessarily that the friends and the enemies of Slavery would have a sharp contest for the Territory:—and that emigrants would pour into it by thousands from all sections of the Union. The Northern States were the first to enter the field:—but the South is resolved to make up for loss of time by an excess of zeal.

The South, however, must know that the contest is unequal. Where there is one man in the Southern States prepared to emigrate to Kansas, there are ten in the North. It will not do for the South to send whites who are not slaveholders,—for they would become Anti-Slavery men the moment they reached Kansas. And of the slaveholders, themselves, there are very few who can afford such a transplantation of their interests as emigration to Kansas would involve. But every Northern, and every Western State, is full of active, hardy men, whose circumstances and disposition alike favor settlement in a new country. Tens of thousands of such men will become inhabitants of Kansas long before the October election arrives.

"Border Ruffians."

The Richmond (Va.) Enquirer, in one of its spasmodic appeals to the slaveholding interest to send emigrants to Kansas, says:

"The 'border ruffian,' the farmer of the far South and West, is the noblest type of mankind. In his person is revived all the chivalry and generosity of the knights of the middle ages. He is equally noble, but far more useful. He is the pioneer of a high and honorable civilization. He is planting a master race—men like the Greeks and Romans—on a new soil; not buying up white men at the shambles, to remove them from Slavery to capital in Boston, to make them, in a few generations, slaves to capital in Kansas. In a few generations the process of subsidence and stratification of society takes place, and then, like European peasants, one set of men become (worse than slaves) the mere hereditary bondsmen of capital or property. A thousand men are killed by lightning where one English agricultural peasant rises above the condition of his ancestry. So, without slavery, will it be in Kansas. White men must clean the streets, work the roads, stand behind the chairs of gentlemen at table, brush their clothes, black their boots, and hold their horses. To this condition all free society soon comes."

This eulogy of the "border ruffian" has the merit of novelty;—and so has the accompanying eulogy of Slavery over free society. Both show the inevitable tendency of the slaveholding sentiment, and indicate the issue that must sooner or later be made upon this subject. If the Enquirer is right,—if civilization demands that the laboring classes shall be slaves—if the condition of things at the South is really so superior to the "free society" of the Northern States,—then that condition should be made universal. No solitary reason can be urged for extending Slavery into Kansas, which would not have equal weight in favor of reducing to Slavery the laboring classes in every Northern State.

Kentucky Whigs.

The Straight Whigs die hard in Kentucky; they cannot bring themselves to believe that the Whig Party is among the things that were, and they nurse their delusions with such seriousness that they have actually been holding a Convention at Lexington to reorganize the Party, and have gone to the extreme of making arrangements to hold a Nominating Convention next July, with a view to participating in the next Presidential election as Whigs. Such political infatuation is not common, even among Straight Whigs. Men may die from accidental causes, or be so badly injured as to be at the point of death, and yet recover. But such can never be the case with political parties, which can only die from lack of vitality, and because their mission has been accomplished, or their principles have been proved unsound. Whatever the cause may be, nothing can be more certain than that the Whig Party has ceased to exist, and the most Quixotic of all possible movements is the attempt to reorganize. The breath has left the body, and the body is already in a state of decomposition.

Academy of Music.

VERDI's "Trovatore" will be repeated to-night for the last time this season. Signor BOTTESINI will be the Manrico, the Signor disabled by horse exercise. Signor BOTTESINI sung this role in Italy, and judging from what he has already accomplished with VERDI's assistance, is capable, we should think, of creating a favorable impression.

NEW-YORK CITY.

The Children's Aid Society.

Three years ago, Mr. CHARLES L. BRACE and a few earnest men and women with him, projected an association which should aim to relieve the children of New-York from degradation and crime. It was proposed to furnish employment to such poor children as could be induced to enter the schools, to provide decent lodgings for the numerous class of the newsboys, to find homes in the country for children who could be persuaded to leave the City, and to gather the Germans and Italians into places where they would learn, at once, decency, morals, and the English tongue. Three years is but a short time in which to work out a reform of magnitude, but a great deal has been accomplished, in spite of obstacles, limited accommodations and scanty funds. The community having realized the importance of the work which the Society has undertaken, the yearly results grow in interest as the field widens.

The agencies employed in the management of the affairs of this Society are Industrial Schools, Boys' Meetings, Lodging-houses for Boys and Girls, and the distribution of the children among homes which are found for them in the country. There are now in the City five Industrial Schools, whose pupils during the year numbered 1,071. They are situated in the Fourth Ward, at No. 21 Oliver-street, at No. 14 Avenue C, on the Hudson River side at No. 254 West Twenty-eighth-street; on the East River in Fortieth-street, near Third-avenue, and others in the Five Points (House of Industry) for Italian children, and in connection with Calvary Church (Dr. HAWES'). The school in Avenue C is intended for the benefit of German children. The Italian School is under the care of Mr. CERQUA, and the branches taught are principally English. The cost of conducting these schools during the year 1855 was as follows:

Fourth Ward	$1,510 60
Avenue C	1,657 47
Hudson River	1,390 11
East River	512 00
Calvary Church	361 99
Italian	250 00
Total	$5,649 17

The house for the Oliver-street School is liberally awarded to the Society, rent free, by Mr. MOSES H. GRINNELL. The ladies of Calvary Church have contributed liberally to the support of the School in connection with that Church. The Italian School is intended to reach the numerous and needy and ignorant class of organ-grinders and itinerant statuette sellers; it was only established in December last, but shows such results as this: That 20 boys who never attended school, learned the alphabet and numbers, and the rudiments of writing, between Jan. 1 and Feb. 26; that several others who knew how to spell only in Italian, now spell in English and write copies; that some who could only read are now able to write; and that those who knew how to write in Italian, now learn to translate into English.

The Newsboys' Lodging-house, established last year, has been followed by a Lodging-house for Girls, which has apartments in the upper part of No. 22 Oliver-street. The number of newsboys who lodged in the Newsboys' Rooms during the year was 574, of whom eight were adults; number of lodgings furnished, 7,599. The number of newsboys who found other employment was 41. The expenses of the Newsboys' Lodging-house in 1855 were $1,431; receipts from lodgers, $391 26. There were 82 female lodgers in Oliver-street during the same period.

The statistics of the number of destitute girls who were sheltered in the new lodging-house form an interesting feature of the report:

	No.
Girls who have no home	32
Taken from the Tombs	10
Beaten and turned out	2
Found in the streets	3
Found in Twenty-seventh-street, nearly starved	5
Came in sick	1
Other temporary lodgers	4
Vagrants	1
From the Office	38

The Boys' Meetings, an effective means of reaching a large and destitute class of lads who prowl about the streets and fall into crime unchecked, unless rescued by some such agency as this, have prospered abundantly, two new meetings having been opened during the year. The enterprise in Greenwich-street, near Charlton, embarrassed financially, has been given up for the present.

The Children's Aid Society expended $10,017 in 1855, and its receipts were $10,004, so that the receipts and expenditures were nearly equal, the former slightly inferior to the latter.

Upwards of 900 persons were provided with homes in the country during the year—men, 61; women, 58; boys, 424; girls, 398. Places were found in this State for 817, in New-Jersey for 105, in Pennsylvania for 164, in Illinois 16, and others in New-England and the Far West.

The Society hopes to receive sufficient aid in the prosecution of its enterprise to justify the employment of new agents to canvass the poor districts of the City, and to effect the permanent establishment of workshops, new industrial schools, and other useful agencies.

The report has an appendix, filled with narratives of striking scenes, witnessed by the agents of the Society, in the course of their daily rambles.

The Celestials not all Beggars—Sale of Chinese Theatrical Costumes.

We have seen a remonstrance signed by several of the Chinese now in the City, who are able to maintain themselves decently without appealing to the charitable for pity and pennies, in which they indignantly protest against the conduct of their mendicant fellow-countrymen, who crouch in miserable attitudes upon the sidewalks, and invite you by printed placard, to buy something of a poor Chinaman. The remonstrants desire most earnestly that the good people of New-York should not form their opinion of the Celestial nation from the beggars now in the City, or take them to be representatives even of the Chinese of their own station in life. The remonstrance is highly honorable to those connected with it. Still we imagine that it is very difficult for some of these poor fellows to earn a living.

Most of the Chinamen in town are the remains of the Tong Hock Tong Dramatic Company, originally numbering about 90, which came to this City from San Francisco three or four years ago under the charge of BEACH & Co., for the purpose of giving exhibitions. They arrived in a vessel consigned to DAVIS, BROOKS & Co., and being unable to pay their fare after getting here, which amounted to about $5,000, transferred their theatrical costume to BEACH, who agreed to retain it as security until it could be redeemed. Meanwhile BEACH had not paid their expenses hither, and without the knowledge of the Chinese, pledged the wardrobe with DAVIS, BROOKS, & Co., to cover the amount due them. The wardrobe and properties were yesterday disposed of at auction by HAGGERTY, JONES & Co., the sale attracting a large attendance. The original cost of this wardrobe was $40,000, and the sum realized for it yesterday was less than $600. The costume is got up in the richest style, a large portion of it being silk and tinsel work. Among the articles sold were elegant gold embroidered and satin robes, embroidered scarfs with mirrors, aprons, vests, pantaloons, &c. The highest price paid for a robe was $41; but with one or two exceptions all brought less than $20 each. There were none of the poor unfortunate Celestials present to witness this sacrifice of their property.

The English Weather of Yesterday.

A beautiful fog yesterday morning and evening, with that peculiar odor about it which cannot be counterfeited by art, rejoiced the English residents of the City and its suburbs. A London Captain, on sailing up the Thames, after a year's absence in the Mediterranean, is reported to have exclaimed with rapture: "Ah, this is something like weather—none of your frightful blue sky," and yesterday our English and Irish friends—for they have fogs also in Ireland—were deliciously reminded of the land of their birth, and were enabled to exclaim with the Cockney skipper, that it was something like weather. We were told the English houses of [illegible]

[illegible] Bulls congratulating [illegible] in such a sort of holiday with them. [illegible] to rate, within a moment's [illegible]

To Men Who Wish to Live Long Lives.

If a man wishes to live long, he must come to nothing that will cost an enemy an argument. A grain of white powder does the deed, [illegible] and tells the Coroner exactly what the deed was done by. For the convulsions it produces are as peculiar as they are terrible. Tetanus is the only thing they can be mistaken for. No one who has seen them once ever mistakes them a second time. In 5 or 20 minutes after the strychnine is given horrible lockjaw occurs, the body stiffens, the skin becomes livid, the eyeballs stick out, the pupils are dilated, and the patient dies of suffocation.

But the moment the breath has departed, and the anatomist makes his post mortem, detection is sure. The chemist is sure to find some hundredth or thousandth part of a grain of the mineral clinging to the inner coat of the stomach, and his tests will produce from that fraction a series of brilliant rings of color which cannot be mistaken. Or if the physician give to a living animal a portion of the fluid taken from the intestines of the dead person, those same terrible convulsions will be reproduced. So, if there are any of the family of Borgia in town, let them remember that strychnine is the poison; it kills the patient, and points unerringly to the method of the death. It is even surer than arsenic to bring the wretch who uses it to the gallows—or as near to it as modern civilization will allow a gentleman to come—to a nice room in the Sing Sing Hotel, and the clemency of a feeling Governor.

The Fillibusters' Witnesses—Locked Up—Wanting—Stayed.

The trial of the indicted Fillibusters arrested on the Northern Light, was set down for yesterday, in the United States District Court. The prolongation of the GROGAN LAW and $500 suit compelled its postponement rather indefinitely. A motion will, therefore, be made by the counsel in the case on Monday next to dismiss the complaint. But the disposition of the witnesses is a little curious.

WM. H. ALLEN, the informing party upon whose affidavit the arrests were effected, has gone to Demerara. He was held to bail first in the amount of $1,500, to appear as a witness, but his bail was subsequently released on his own recognizance to appear at the trial. District-Attorney MCKNIGHT is sanguine that he would be in attendance.

M. G. HOGGINS, the next important witness, now lies in the Tombs, having, since his detention as a witness, been arrested on a charge of swindling passengers for Australia.

Mr. P. BARCROFT, the book-keeper of HOGGINS, is not to be found.

Col. MACK, arrested as a fillibuster, but held as a witness, and dismissed on his own recognizance to appear, has eloped. The last that was seen of him he was drilling recruits in Nicaragua.

WM. MACY, also held as a witness, does not turn up. It is supposed he is bearing a musket somewhere over the plains of Central America. Lastly, Capt. WM. KENNEY, the leading witness before the Grand Jury, and whose evidence led principally to finding the indictments, is nowhere to be hit upon.

Tacking Ship?

The Independent, which has been barking at the American Tract Society for some two years past, declares, in this week's issue, that it has "no conflict" whatever with that institution, but on the other hand that it is very "jealous for its honor and usefulness!" Pray, what's in the wind now?

The same page of the Independent on which this profession appears, contains three editorial columns, out of six, filled with animadversions upon the American Tract Society.

Junior Exhibition at Williams College.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times:

The Exhibition of the Junior Class of Williams came off in the Congregational Church on the evening of the 15th. The Greek Oration was admirably delivered by ALEXANDER HUMPHREY, of Pittsfield, N. Y.; the Latin Oration, by GEORGE D. GOODRICH, of East Windsor Hill, Conn. The English speeches were delivered by Rufus Apthorp, Homer B. Stevens, Benton W. Cole, Charles M. Pierce, G. Havens De Berdine, William G. Harding, Robert Murray, Jr., William Tatlock, Horace H. Wells, Andrew Parsons, R. E. McMath and Samuel Wood.

The appointments for the Prize Rhetorical Exhibition, which comes off at Commencement time, were given the day after the Junior Exhibition. They are as follows: Juniors—Edward S. Isham, E. Quackenbush, R. Apthorp. Sophomores—George Henry Beckwith, E. Cleveland, J. J. Doughty. Freshmen—George M. Wright, Walter Day, William D. Spalding. S. P. M.

☞ Wall and Nassau-streets have recently become a mart for the sale of horses. Almost daily at one o'clock horses and carriages intended for sale are driven up and down these crowded streets, with notice of the auction placarded on the flanks of the quadrupeds. At the appointed time, having undergone the inspection of purchasers, they pass under the hammer and become the property of the highest bidder. A vender in Wall-street informed us yesterday that they were sold at a great sacrifice; we should expect that any horse that ventured to enter the den of the "Bears" would meet with "great sacrifices"; but when another owner of horse flesh, who was evidently a German not many years arrived from fatherland, informed us that his animal would sell "sheep," we thought that at the present price of mutton that was no recommendation, and advised him to keep the fast to himself if he was desirous of effecting a sale. What next from Wall-street?

☞ Twenty drawers and stands, on table No. 3, in the Flour Department of the Corn Exchange, were let at noon yesterday, for a term of five years, at $10 per annum for each drawer and stand. The privilege of selection was sold at auction. The highest price obtained therefor was $61; the lowest, $34. This sale netted $645.

☞ The Fire-Marshal has sent a printed card, containing a copy of his suggestions as to the means of guarding against fires, to the proprietors of buildings in the City. We hope his cautions will be heeded; at least one-half of the fires that occur so frequently in this City, are occasioned by accidents which, with a little care, might be effectually guarded against.

☞ Mrs. POMEROY, a Spiritual Medium, has prophesied that the steamer Ericsson, which left this port nearly four month's ago, will be burned to the water's edge before the 20th of the present month. Drive a nail there.

☞ The new steamer Adriatic was floated out of the large balance dock, foot of Market-street, yesterday, at 7 o'clock A. M. She was then taken in tow to the Novelty Works to receive her machinery.

Landlord and Tenant.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

Please inform me, is it imperative on the tenant to quit his apartments on the first of May, without any legal process or written notice by his landlord? The tenancy is a monthly one, held by oral agreement, and rent has been always paid by me in advance. This landlord tells me he has let the apartments to others, as I had declined to pay him some $6 per month increase.

Your obliged P. M. G.

DEAR P. M. G.: Our columns are too crowded—better consult a lawyer. Take his bond that he will not lead you into a Chancery suit, make a settlement on your wife, get your life insured in behalf of your children, set aside a fund to pay the expenses, and then if you can find an honest lawyer put the question.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

TO PERSONS WHO DRINK AT BARS AND HOTELS.

Since the introduction of my SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS in the United States, a number of Liquor Sellers in New-York have commenced putting up mixed and poison Gin, and calling it Schiedam. The same language [illegible] to my article—all others are counterfeits and impositions on the public.

I understand a number of bar-rooms in this City have the poisonous Gin for sale on account of the cheapness of the price—$2 50 a dozen—when pure Holland Gin is bought by the pipe $1 50 a gallon. Look out for such impositions.

UDOLPHO WOLFE.

FOR SALE.

FARM LANDS FOR SALE.—THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY ARE NOW PREPARED TO SELL OVER TWO MILLION OF ACRES OF FARMING LANDS, in tracts of 40 acres and upwards, on a credit of six years, with interest at 6 per cent. These lands were granted to the Railroad Company to aid in the construction of the Railroad, and include some of the richest and best farming portions in the State. Immense tracts have and there with magnificent groves of oak and other timber. The road extends from Chicago, on the lake, to Cairo, on the Ohio, and from Dunleith to Cairo and Dunleith, on the Mississippi, the extremes of the State, and at all the leading points within fifteen miles on each side of this road, ready and cheap access are afforded by it for transporting the products of the lands to any of those markets and from thence to Eastern and Southern markets, assuring the rapid growth of flourishing towns and villages along the line, and the great increase in population by insuring to the settler a substantial and growing home demand for farm produce.

The soil is a dark, rich mould, from one to five feet in depth, is gently rolling and peculiarly fitted for grazing cattle and sheep, or the cultivation of wheat, Indian corn, &c.

Economy in cultivating and great productiveness are the well-known characteristics of Illinois lands. Trees are not required to be cut down, stumps grubbed, or stone picked off, as is generally the case in cultivating new land in the older States. The first crop of Indian corn, planted on the newly-broken sod, usually repays the cost of plowing and fencing.

Wheat sown on the newly-turned sod is sure to yield very large crops. A man with a plow and two yoke of oxen will break one and a half to two acres per day. Contracts can be made for breaking, ready for corn or wheat, at from $2 to $2 50 per acre. By judicious management, the land may be plowed and fenced the first, and under a high state of cultivation the second year.

Corn, grain, cattle, etc., will be forwarded at reasonable rates to Chicago, for the Eastern market, and to Cairo for the Southern. The larger yield on the cheap lands of Illinois over the high-priced lands in the Eastern and middle States is known to be much more than sufficient to pay the difference of transportation to the Eastern market.

Bituminous coal is mined at several points along the road, and is a cheap and desirable fuel. It can be delivered at several points along the Road at $1 50 to $4 per ton; wood can be had at the same rates per cord.

Those who think of settling in Iowa or Minnesota should bear in mind that lands there, of any value, along the water courses and for many miles inland, have been disposed of, that for those located in the interior, there are no conveniences for transporting the produce to market, Railroads not having been introduced 100 miles to send the produce of those lands one or two hundred miles by wagon to market, would cost much more than the expense of cultivating them; and hence, Government lands thus situated, at $1 25 per acre, are not so good investments as the land of the Company at the prices fixed.

The same remarks hold good in relation to the lands in Kansas and Nebraska, for although vacant lands may be found nearer the water courses, the distance to market is far greater, and every hundred miles the produce of those lands is carried either in wagons, or interrupted water communications, increases the expenses of transportation, which must be borne by the settlers. In the reduced price of their products; and so that extent precisely are the incomes from their farms, and of course on their investments, annually and every year reduced.

The great fertility of the lands now offered for sale by this Company, and their consequent yield over those of the Eastern and Middle States, is much more than sufficient to pay the difference in the cost of transportation, especially in view of the facilities furnished by this road, and others with which it connects, the operations of which are not interrupted by the low water of Summer, or the frost of Winter.

PRICE AND TERMS OF PAYMENT.

The price will vary from $5 to $20, according to location, quality, &c. Contracts for deeds may be made during the year 1856, stipulating the purchase money to be paid in five annual instalments. The first to become due in two years from the date of contract, and the others annually thereafter. The last payment will become due at the end of the sixth year from the date of the contract.

INTEREST WILL BE CHARGED AT ONLY THREE PER CENT, PER ANNUM.

As a security to the performance of the contract, the first two years' interest must be paid in advance, and it must be understood that at least one-tenth of the land purchased shall yearly be brought under cultivation. Longer credits, at 8 per cent. per annum, may be negotiated by special application. Twenty per cent. from the credit price will be deducted for cash. The Company's construction bonds will be received as such.

READY FRAMED FARM BUILDINGS, WHICH CAN BE SET UP IN A FEW DAYS, CAN BE OBTAINED FROM RESPONSIBLE PERSONS.

They will be 12 feet by 20 feet, divided into one living and three bedrooms, and will cost complete, set up on ground chosen anywhere along the Road, $150 in cash, exclusive of transportation. Larger buildings may be contracted for at proportionate rates. The Company will forward all the materials for such buildings over their road gratuitously.

Special arrangements with dealers can be made to supply those purchasing of the Company's lands with fencing materials, agricultural tools, and an outfit of provisions in any quantity, at the lowest wholesale prices.

It is believed that the price, long credit, and low rate of interest, charged for these lands, will enable a man with a few hundred dollars in cash, and ordinary industry, to make himself independent before all the purchase money becomes due. In the meantime, the rapid settlement of the country will, probably, have increased their value four or fivefold. When required, an experienced person will accompany applicants, to give information and aid in selecting lands.

Circulars, containing numerous instances of successful farming, signed by respectable and well-known persons living in the neighborhood of the Railroad lands, throughout the State—also, the cost of fencing, price of cattle, expense of harvesting, threshing, &c., by contract—or any other information—will be cheerfully given, on application, either personally or by letter. Circulars in English, French or German. Address to JOHN WILSON, Land Commissioner of the Illinois Central R. R. Co., No. 53 Michigan-av., Chicago, Ill.

ATTRACTIVE COUNTRY SEAT.—A DESIRABLE BARGAIN.—On the Hartford Railroad, Breeze River, one hour's ride from the City, and within a minute's walk of a depot, at which 13 trains of cars stop during the day. MEDICAL.

PRIVATE CONSULTATIONS.

DR. WATSON continues his treatment of a certain class of diseases, in the most successful manner of all others. Those desirous of consulting a physician of extensive practice, and who have tried many others without benefit, and to all who may be unfitted from any cause to attend to their business, with a most speedy and thorough cure, Dr. WATSON feels a pride in stating that he may, from long experience, be relied upon as a safe and skillful practitioner. Dr. WATSON desires to state that, as many have been deceived by the appearance of certain advertisements, he would, in the first place, as there is no charge for consultation, be pleased to see them.

W. WATSON, M. D.,
Many years Surgeon to the Lock Hospital; Author of "The Guide and Cure," recently issued, 25 cts. Office No. 60 Wallker-st., fourth door west of Broadway.

ROMAN EYE BALSAM.

FOR WEAK AND INFLAMED EYES.

This Balsam is the very best remedy that can be used for inflamed eyelids. It almost invariably relieves all irritation, and usually effects a complete cure after a few applications. For sale by A. B. & D. SANDS, No. 100 Fulton-st., and by Druggists generally.

THE GREATEST REMEDY.—DISEASE IN ALL FORMS.—Dr. KENNEDY, of Rochester, has discovered in one of our common native weeds, a remedy that cures every kind of humor, from the worst scrofula down to a common pimple.

He has tried it in over 1,200 cases, and never failed, except in two cases, both of malignant cancer. He has now in his possession over 250 certificates of its virtues, all within 10 miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a scalding pain month. One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of boils.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst ulcer in the mouth or stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humors in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and running sores.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure really troublesome itching of the skin.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of erysipelas.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.

Two to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula. A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Recently, I purified over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the efficacy of it in every case. As soon as water will certainly do, to cure will like cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that said another; after a trial, it always spoke for itself. There are two things about this herb that recommend it to universal attention, the great facility with which it can be obtained, and the great ease with which it can be prepared. Recommended it in 1846; second, that it almost cures all kinds of humors.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1855, I sold 27, and in the above list the next day. In April, 1854, I sold over a thousand bottles per day.

No change of diet ever necessary—eat the best you can get, and enough of it.

Directions can Use.—Adults, one table spoonful per day; children over 8 years, dessert spoonful; children from 3 to 8 years, tea spoonful. As no direction can be given for all cases, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.

Mr. KENNEDY gives personal attendance in bad cases of Scrofula.

Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren-st., Rochester. Price $1 per bottle.

REPRESENTATIVE IN AMERICA.

Dr. BARROW, No. 31 Greene-st., near Canal, New-York, specially appointed by the proprietor and patentee of TRIESEMAR.—THE GREAT EUROPEAN DISCOVERY, patented by Royal Letters Patent of England, and secured by the sales of the Ecole de Pharmacie de Paris, and the Imperial College of Medicine, Vienna.

TRIESEMAR No. 1.—Is the remedy of general and local debility, loss of virile power, premature decay, and all the distressing consequences arising from early abuse, as would not become impaired, even in the decline of life, if the Triesemar be universally adopted in all physical impediments vanish like magic before its influence, thus rendering its use invaluable to those entering the marriage state.

TRIESEMAR No. 2.—Completely and entirely eradicates all traces of those disorders which copaiva and cubebs have so long been thought an antidote for, to the ruin of the health of a vast portion of the population.

TRIESEMAR No. 3.—Is the great European remedy for that class of disorders which, unfortunately, the English physician treats with mercury, to the inevitable destruction of the patient's constitution, and which all the Sarsaparilla in the world cannot remove.

TRIESEMAR No. 4.—Is perfectly alike devoid of taste or smell, and all nauseating qualities. They may lay on the toilet table without their use being detected.

Sold in the cases at $6 each, or four cases in one for $20, which saves $8; and in $27 cases, whereby there is a saving of $9; divided into separate doses, as administered by Valentin, Paris, for $1 each.

To be had, wholesale and retail, and forwarded immediately on receiving a remittance, to any part of the world, by H. A. BARROW, M. D., No. 31 Greene-st., near Canal, New-York. Attendance daily, from 11 A. M. till 2 P. M., and from 4 to 9 P. M. (Sundays excepted), unless by previous appointment. No. 31 Greene-st., near Canal. Will remove, on the 1st of May next, to No. 157 Prince-st.

DR. HUNTER'S NEW MEDICAL WORK, THE WADE MOULD, giving the London, Paris and Vienna treatment, 600 pages, full of colored plates. Among its contents is the anatomy of the sexual organs of the male and female, all their diseases and weaknesses, latest discoveries in reproduction; quacks, their receipts and specifics; nervous debility, local and general, from excess and indiscretion in youth. Price four Dollars. To be had of Dr. HUNTER himself, No. 4 Division-st., New-York, long and favorably known to the public. He may be consulted gratis at his old-established office, where he has practised in one branch of medicine for the last twenty-four years, and made more cures than any other man in the City, in many instances of persons considered incurable, some of which he has permission to refer to as hereafter, Charges moderate, and in all cases a cure guaranteed. Caution—My great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, that cures the disease without drying its poison in the blood, can only be had as here; it makes a speedy cure, without the least restriction in diet, drink, or occupation—one bottle is sufficient. One bottle will cure the most inveterate case. Many are cured in a few hours; it entirely supersedes the dangerous and indiscriminate use of Mercury, which too often causes the inevitable destruction of the constitution.

$500 REWARD.—JEFFRIES' ANTIDOTE—A specific mixture for the cure of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, and similar disorders. It makes a speedy cure, without the last restriction of diet, drink, exposure, or change in application to business. Our object is to notify people that it can be recorded in a thousand cases of recent Gonorrhœa within the mixture will not cure, under a forfeiture of $500. Furthermore, the disease cannot be contracted if a dose of the mixture is taken when exposed. Repeated experiments and long experience have proved that it will radically cure any case which can be produced. This desirable result is obtained in from two to ten days, and as it neither creates nausea nor offends the palate, and renders unnecessary any deviation in diet or interruption to usual pursuits, sound sleep or healthy digestion, the nuisance is thus removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure. The mixture is entirely vegetable, and no injurious effect, either constitutionally or locally, can be caused by its use. Price $1 per bottle. Agent, C. H. RING, No. 192 Broadway, corner of John-st., and corner Broadway and 14th-st.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP CURES—When the treatment of other physicians and all other remedies fail. It is your only reliance for a thorough cure in certain diseases. No. 3 Division-st., the only place where no well known for the very many extraordinary cures it has performed, without diet, or hindrance from business, when all other remedies only drive the disease in the blood. $1 only. This secures the patient from secondary attacks, and is the only remedy on earth that does it. You will find this out by bitter experience, if you trust to any other medicine. It has cured thousands of cases that many would have been hurried to the grave. Dr. HUNTER restores people to health daily, who have been almost ruined by mercury and caustics by the humbugs.

Naval.

A draft of men from the Brooklyn Navy-Yard, under command of Captain De Camp, United States Navy, sailed yesterday for Norfolk in the steamship [illegible]. They are probably destined for the sloop-of-war Portsmouth, which was recently put in commission.

Libel Suit.

On Wednesday, M. M. Ballou, Proprietor of Ballou's Pictorial, of Boston, was arrested at the suit of Frank Leslie, the Proprietor of Leslie's Illustrated newspaper, and appeared before Judge Womersley, of the Superior Court, and gave bail in $2,000 for answer to the charge of libel.

The action is based upon the alleged sending of an [illegible] note by the defendant to the firm of Ackerman & Dunnigan & Co., paper manufacturers, tending to injure the credit of plaintiff with the above firm. Damages laid at $20,000.

The Charge of Inquiry upon Lieut. G. L. Willard, U. S. A.

This Court met at 11 A. M. yesterday, Mr. Hoffman defined to offer as a part of the documentary evidence an English diary, wherein were recorded his [illegible] Lieut. Willard, as also his check-book with Mr. [illegible] of New-York. They were not in [illegible] the evidence, which offer The Court [illegible] Mr. Hoffman Dallas, taken on his Court-Martial, was read, confirming the evidence of Mrs. Halliday [illegible] closed the prosecution.

Lieut. Willard entered upon his defense by requesting permission of first Mr. Hallonquist's monthly return of provisions received and issued by him at Fort Columbus, for the month of April, 1854, by Lieut. Willard, which was granted. Lieut. Willard then stated, Lieut. S. Willard's fort and [illegible] for the four months ending Dec. 31, 1855, and for the year 1855, to the Attorney-General's office, which was granted. He gave the names of his witnesses, and [illegible] to attack the character of Mr. Hallonquist in his defense.

Adjourned to 11 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Wortabet's Lecture.

Last evening, despite of the rain, Mr. Wortabet's concluding lecture on Syria, delivered before the Young Men's Christian Association, at Rose Chapel, was delivered to a crowded audience. After stating that the [illegible] will for its authenticity, he proceeded to describe the Druses and other races forming the mixed population of that country, the former the descendants of the Crusaders. He believes that the Druses are a separate race, giving as reason for the opinion, the sketched [illegible] and marriage ceremonies of the Druses, as well as their other native habits, as unknown to any other race. Mr. Wortabet was sent by his master to obtain a knowledge of the Druses. He concluded an admirable review of the Druses, in which he found the striking fact in the country, that they are not found by their neighbors more hopeful condition, namely, that whenever and to the extent that the Druses are allowed to circulate freely, would correspond [illegible] the social, intellectual and moral elevation of the people. The argument was sustained from the late events in Turkey and Abyssinia, as contrasted with other events in Europe, and the Druses as the sole agent of liberty and [illegible].

Sabbath-School Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Managers of the New-York Sabbath-School Union, was held at the Mercer-street Church, Rev. William Adams, D.D., President, in the Vice-Chair. The regular monthly report of business, and reports concerning the Sabbath-Schools, James B. Holmes, Esq., the Corresponding Secretary of the Union, offered the following resolution, which is the death of our beloved friend and fellow-laborer, Joseph McKean, whose long and lively interest in the cause of Sabbath-Schools, and whose rare acquaintance with and tact in the management of the Sunday School cause in the City of New-York, has been one of the chief friends and this Board can ill spare his services.

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission under the inscrutable dispensation, knowing that the Judge of all the earth must do right, we do, nevertheless, deeply feel the loss we sustain in our departed brother, whose counsels have often essentially aided our deliberations, whose prayers have been in our midst, whose sympathies have often cheerfully aided our efforts, whose Christian character, conversation and conduct have been in the spirit of the Gospel, and whose death, in the prime of life, and in the full tide of his usefulness, we regard as a public calamity, and a special bereavement to the cause of Sabbath-Schools.

Sunday Accident.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

On Saturday night last, between 10 and 11 o'clock, one of our school men, while on his way to deliver [illegible] near the corner of Sullivan-street and Clinton-street, Brooklyn, was set upon, knocked down, and so badly injured and bruised that he was confined to his house and for days in a physician. The villains succeeded in robbing him of a small amount of money, but the loss of his pocket-book, being in another pocket, he preserved, together with a package of clothing. Some money (not worthless) coming in sight, the rascals fled.

Yours truly, A. MUNROE & CO.

Eighth Ward Republicans.

The Republicans of the Eighth Ward held a meeting at the Mercer House last evening. General [illegible] of Kansas, was present, and made a speech. Resolutions were also made by J. T. M. [illegible], Esq., and T. R. Hillhouse. The following [illegible] were chosen permanent officers of the meeting, viz:

[illegible] Shaw.

[illegible] Wm. Ellis.

[illegible] one from each District in the Ward: [illegible] H. Stoutenburg, H. [illegible], Jno. W. Rogers, S. S. [illegible].

[illegible] on the call of the Chair.

☞ The girls of Ward School No. 3 are behind [illegible] at the Church corner of Gouverneur and Madison streets.

THE PARISH WILL.

Contested Will.

SURROGATE'S COURT—April 16.

Before Surr. [illegible] and a jury.

In the matter of the Will of Henry Parish.—The parties interested in the probate of the will of the late Henry Parish, this day appeared before the Hon. the Surrogate, to have the will of Mr. Parish proved. The will was contested by Mesdames P. B. Quitine, Ogden Hoffman, Jr. and Daniel Lord, Executors; by Messrs. Dillon, Chas. O'Conor, Jordan and Edmonds.

On the part of all the parties, Mr. Edmonds announced that in consideration with the decision of the Hon. the Surrogate, a compromise had been prepared, and was now presented on the part of Allen M. Sherman, a party to the will, without prejudice, however, to the claim of his wife as a legatee.

Daniel Lord was then sworn in proof of the will. The examination was conducted by Mr. Ogden Hoffman. He said: I am an attorney and counselor; I was acquainted with Henry Parish in his lifetime, for a long time prior to his decease; had known him as a director of the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, and of the Phoenix Bank, or in connection with these companies; I should think I knew him for fifteen years prior to his death; I was residing at Fairfield and was sent for by Mr. Parish; I came to New-York on the 8th August, 1849, and called at Mr. Parish's house in Union-square; I was informed that Mr. Parish was sick, and that it was desirable to have a codicil drawn for him disposing of certain property; I made some inquiry as to the state of his health; I saw Mrs. Parish, and a Mr. Delafield, who I cannot designate by name; I then drew up the codicil; I suggested to call as a witness some acquaintance of Mr. Parish, and I, also, appointed my son to attend as a witness to the execution; Mr. Holbrook, my son and myself, met for that purpose; Mr. Holbrook I knew to have been an old acquaintance of Mr. Parish and his brother, who is in business, Mr. Daniel Parish; we were shown up.

The Court—Please to fix the date of this.

Witness—I think it was on the 29th August; I am not sure as to the time of day; I think it was in the afternoon; we found Mr. Parish sitting in a chair in his bedroom; I mentioned that I had come with the codicil, and to know if he wished to execute it; I had been told of the difficulty of communicating with him; I found him unable to articulate with any degree of distinctness, but he expressed his consent and his wishes by movements of the head; I asked him if I should read it to him; he expressed his consent by saying "Yes," and by nodding; I then read it slowly and distinctly; after that I asked if it was his wish to give his property in the way; he expressed that it was; and then I asked if he would sign it; he expressed that he would; a stand or table was procured, with writing materials; he was unable to raise his arms to the table; I asked if I should sign it for him; he assented, and I took his hand with the pen in it and with the assistance he made his usual signature, having written his name immediately before he made his mark between the two words Henry and Parish; I asked him if he wished Mr. Holbrook and my son to sign as witnesses; it was then subscribed by the two witnesses whose names are here; they were signed in my presence; I had not seen him since he was in good health and I asked him if I should sign, to which he assented; I then wrote my name to the subscription clause and also put under the name signed by me, by direction of Henry Parish—DANIEL LORD; that concluded what was done on the 29th of August; the paper was left with Mrs. Parish; afterwards I learned that Mr. Parish had improved in health, and I suggested to Mrs. Parish, and Mr. Delafield, to be communicated to her, that I should be glad if Mr. Parish reported the execution of this paper; accordingly I met at Mr. Parish's house with Mr. Holbrook, on the 14th of December, 1849; Mr. Parish was then in his library, dressed, and apparently cheerful, as far as his condition could allow; I asked if he would re-execute the paper, and he expressed that he would; a pen was put into his hand; he made the mark upon the paper immediately after the prior signature; the codicil had been again read to him; I read it, and asked him if he wished to execute it; he assented, and then drawing up a second subscription clause, I asked if he would declare it to be a codicil to his will, and if he wished us to witness it; he expressed that he would, and we signed it—Mr. Holbrook and myself; everything was done slowly, distinctly and audibly.

Mr. Ogden Hoffman—Is Mr. Holbrook alive or dead, Sir?

Witness—Mr. Holbrook is deceased; on each occasion he perfectly understood what was proposed to be done and what was done; on the first occasion I had but little communication with him further than to ascertain if it was his wish to give the property expressed in this codicil to Mrs. Parish; on the second occasion I think my communication with him was more extensive; I had no doubt of his capacity in regard to mind, memory and understanding to execute a lasting barg[illegible]; and I was under no restraint; on the first occasion I think he was unable to lift his arms; his articulation was not entirely within his command; he could not converse by speech at all; he expressed his assent or dissent by attempts to say "yes" or "no" more or less successful, as he was able to command the muscles of his mouth; his sight appeared to be impaired, but he was not blind.

Mr. Hoffman—Look at the codicil of Sept. 15. State the circumstances which led to the execution of it.

Witness—I was called to go to Mr. Parish's on my return from the Summer vacation, by Mrs. Parish; I was requested to call at his house and see him, as he wished to make some further disposition; I called on him; the form was submitted to him; I met him at his house in Union-square several times, and conversed with him upon it; Mr. Parish's condition had improved very much, he could articulate "Yes" and "No," but could not speak a country of words; he conveyed his wish to communicate by marks of impatience and in attempts to speak; we had several conversations as to the contents of the codicil; he had on that occasion a statement of the items of all his property, given in his former will and codicil, and all which he possessed, giving separate items with estimated valuation; he pointed out an item of $41,000 of Alabama State Stock, and another of $60,000 of New-York State or City Stock, in regard to which he seemed to want to think over; it was also spoken of to revoke the appointment of Daniel Parish as one of his executors; it was arranged that I should meet him at the house near Hell Gate, belonging to the Delafields; I was to come out and breakfast with him and talk it to him about the codicil; I did so up according to appointment.

There were before us the will, the statement of his property, and of the disposition made by his will, with a valuation of the property; his instructions were then finally taken as to all that he wished; he directed the revocation of the appointment of Daniel; I read it to him, and he required consideration of the items he held in securities; there were the subject of considerable difficulty to him; after some time, the question was put to him whether it was his will to give it in charity.

Mr. Hoffman—Who suggested that?

Witness—I do not know; several suggestions were made, and on coming to this he nodded assent; the difficulty then arose to be what charity he would leave it; he was suggested it all to the New-York Eye Infirmary, but he refused; he afterwards adopted the sums set down.

He pointed to the blank leaves at the back of the will and seemed to desire that the codicil should be put on them, and it was arranged that a new draft should be made embracing the gifts of the first codicil; when that codicil was made, I suggested several witnesses, Mr. Fearing and Mr. Ward, but they were out of town; Mr. Chas. A. Davis was got to attest the codicil and met us on the 15th September, and, after the proper formalities were performed according to law, the codicil was duly signed; I think that on this occasion he himself made his mark without assistance, and we signed in his presence and in that of each other; I had four or five interviews with him exclusively on this business.

[Codicil dated June 15, 1854, produced and shown to witness.]

Mr. Hoffman—State the circumstances that led to the execution of that codicil.

Witness—I was requested to draw another codicil for him, and to call at his house on the subject; the final residuary clause of his will, being the 15th item of the will, was read to him, and I was instructed to draw a codicil to revoke that; I made a draft and had it sent to Mr. Parish; it was approved by him; I suggested that Mr. John Ward should be called to attest it; on the 15th June I met him at the house; the codicil and duplicate were read, approved and signed, after all the legal formalities had been gone through with.

Witness was then cross-examined by Mr. O'Conor. The additional facts adduced were these: My acquaintance with Mr. Parish was a speaking one; we usually spoke the one to the other, on meeting; I had conversations with him relative to the affairs of the Atlantic Insurance Company, I believe, and perhaps as to the Phoenix Bank, of which institution he was a director, and I a legal adviser; I never considered my conversations with him as being in the light of counsel; I was the counsel of William and Henry Delafield, brothers of Mrs. Parish; I had to do with a piece of land, in which Mrs. Parish was interested; I believe I had seen the will before I drafted the first codicil; there was some trouble about its having been taken from the Bank where it was kept, by some party not a member of Mr. Parish's family, and I got it for Mrs. Parish or Mr. Delafield; I believe I saw it about that time; on the occasion of my first visit to the house of Mr. Parish, I think I saw one of the medical men; on the first occasion I came especially to New-York on that business; I cannot say how I received the message at Fairfield; the codicil was drawn up in as popular and plain language as possible so as to be easily understood by him and so as to be quickly engrossed owing to the urgency of the occasion.

The Court was then adjourned.

WHERE DO THEY GO TO?—What becomes of all the pins, is an old inquiry. What becomes of all the ancient and worn-out beavers that gentlemen have carried on their heads? is a new question, and one just as curious. Where do they all go to, when, having descended from Broadway to the Points, they are finally cast out into utter darkness? Where the beautiful and the finished come from, we all know. LONG ISLAND.

Recovery of Stolen Goods.

On Wednesday afternoon, officers MATHEWS, SENDIKER, VAN WAGNER, BROWN and FOLK, of the Brooklyn Police, made a descent upon a "fence" at No. 270 Tenth-street, New-York, and obtained possession of some $10,000 worth of stolen property, a portion of which has been identified as part of the stock stolen from the store of Messrs. CURTIS & Co., dry goods dealers, Philadelphia, on the 7th of March last.

The property recovered consists of black satins, fancy silks, green gros de nap., blue do., fancy parasols, silk velvets, black silks, fancy ribbons, (some of these are marked "u g" shilling, "b" dollar mark, and "s u" shillings—erased,) fancy silk gloves, (60 dozen,) dress trimmings, ladies' collars, gentlemen's shirts, (new,) silk handkerchiefs, carpenters' rules, gold watches, gold chains, guard chains, rings, bracelets, brooches, a variety of silver ware and many other articles—all of which can be seen at the office of the Chief of Police.

The building where the goods were found has the appearance of a private residence, but its real character has undoubtedly long been known to some of the New-York Police. The occupants of this house, JOSEPH and MOSES ARZON, were arrested and brought to Brooklyn, where they were retained Wednesday night. Yesterday they were placed in custody of New-York officers, as none of the goods recovered had been identified as having been stolen in Brooklyn, and as the arrest was made in New-York it was necessary to take the accused there to be committed.

☞ A concert of sacred music was given on the evening of the 15th, at the Bedford Church, corner of Clove Road and Pacific-street, Brooklyn, for the benefit of the fund of that Church. The audience was large, the musical selections good, and the execution satisfactory. Among the performers were the Misses HALL and ROSE.

Rev. Mr. O'Reilley—not the Bishop.

From the Hartford Times, 17th.

The Rev. Mr. BURTY, a pastor of St. Patrick's Church, of this city, received a letter to-day, per the Cambria, from the brother of Bishop O'REILLEY, in Ireland, dated March 7th, stating that Bishop O'REILLEY sailed on board of the Pacific, and, of course, his fate is involved in that of the steamer.

The Rev. Mr. O'REILLEY, reported as a passenger in the Cambria, is a nephew of the late Father BRADY. He was expected by this steamer. Of course, then, the report that it was the Rt. Rev. Bishop O'REILLEY, who had arrived, is not correct.

☞ We understand that His Excellency, General Don MANUEL ROSSIN PEDRIA yesterday presented his credentials to the President, and was received as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Mexican Republic to this Government.

THURSDAY, April 17—P. M.

PEACE IS RESTORED IN EUROPE: The important announcement was first made on this side the Ocean early this forenoon, on the arrival of the steamer Baltic. It was not unexpected to the commercial public, and yet the assured certainty of an event so fraught with importance to financial confidence throughout the civilized world caused the most lively satisfaction among our merchants and bankers. That it was earnestly anticipated, and the immediate effects, in the phrase of the Street, "discounted," can scarcely diminish its real and lasting importance. The basis of business is thus made more secure; the calculations of trade more reliable; the estimates of money values more trustworthy, if not more certain. And this sentiment, which we are quite sure must soon become current with cautious capitalists as well as the adventurous merchant, will gradually, perhaps speedily, do its work in imparting additional firmness to Real Estate and Stock investments, and diffusing increased activity to every sound enterprise.

The immediate effect of the news upon the Stock Exchange, as we have intimated, was by no means electric or even very decided, because the Brokers were too well posted on the progress of the negotiation at Paris, not to be prepared for it. Those, who on other and local views had been sturdily opposing a further rise in Stocks, continued to oppose it, and the second or afternoon meeting of the Board closed much the same as on Wednesday; firmer, perhaps, on some of the Western Road Stocks, particularly such as have
